PREFACE.

AT the present time, when a wave of Gaelic enthusiasm is passing over the country, and the language, its literature and music, engage so great a share of public attention, the moment seems favourable for issuing a collection of present-day Gaelic poetry.

Stated broadly, the object of this work is twofold: in the first place, to present a short but accurate account of the lives of contemporary and recent Gaelic poets, comprising a few of those who appeal to the Gael through the medium of English; and, secondly, to supply a large and varied selection of their compositions, including, in many cases, the melodies to which they are sung.

The information brought together in the biographical sketches has been gleaned from a variety of sources, all of which are deemed authentic. We would fain disarm criticism by protesting that we do not pretend to offer any addition to the knowledge of those who are already familiar with the productions of present day poets. Into nothing does the personal element of taste and predilection enter more than into one's appreciation of poetry, in whatever language and of whatever country. No attempt is, therefore, made to enter upon anything like minute criticism. Indeed, that is entirely alien to the design, which is limited in extent to furnishing some slight biographical material by way of contribution to a felt want, leaving the several selections to speak for themselves as regards their individual merits.

In selecting from a mass of poetry, one is liable to be censured for omissions on the one hand, and on the other for including pieces of inferior claims instead of others of superior merit. That, however, resolves itself into a matter of opinion, upon which it is not always possible to receive the sanction of general approval. Nevertheless, the choice here offered is so extensive that probably no reader will experience disappointment because a favourite song is missing, and many will doubtless be gratified by discovering others with which they were not familiar.

But the volume is not merely intended to be used as a song book. We had also in view the forming of a repository where instruction and agreeable entertainment would be available, even for those who may have no knowledge of, or aptitude for music. In order that the work might be better adapted for such purposes, we decided to give each song complete, in addition to printing the first verse along with its accompanying melody. We hope that these features will conduce to make the collection a welcome friend at Gaelic gatherings and at the fireside.

The Gaelic orthography, in the following pages, is not uniform throughout, and this is in deference to the wishes of one or two of the authors, who each desired that his own method of writing his compositions should be adhered to.

In conclusion, it behoves us to mention that this book is an extension of articles contributed during the past year to the People's Journal. We are indebted to many correspondents for their kind assistance and encouragement. In particular, we owe Mr. John MacCallum, Taynuilt, a deep debt of gratitude for a considerable number of melodies which were received from him; also, Mr. Henry Whyte ("Fionn"), Glasgow, and Mr. T. D. MacDonald, Appin, who helped in many ways. Here, also, we gratefully own our indebtedness to An Comunn Gaidhealach and The Gaelic Society of London for granting permission to include prize songs and melodies, further acknowledgment of which is made in the text.

Lieut.-Colonel JOHN MACGREGOR, M.D.

"The Bard of Clan Alpine."

MODERN GAELIC BARDS.

LIEUT.-COLONEL JOHN MACGREGOR, M.D.,

THE BARD OF CLAN ALPINE.

DURING the long persecution of the Clan Macgregor after the battle of Glenfruin, when they were unjustly outlawed and their name forbidden to be borne under penalty of death, John Macgregor, of the Macgregors of Glengyle, Perthshire, found his way to Carloway, on the west coast of the island of Lewis, and settled there. Lieut.-Colonel John Macgregor, M.D., the subject of the present sketch, is the great-great-grandson of this refugee, of whom he is the present representative, and of the Macgregors in Lewis, as well as honorary bard to his ancient and royal Clan.

He is the youngest and only surviving son of the late John Macgregor and Janet Macdonald, Stornoway; was educated at Stornoway, the Glasgow University, by private tuition in London, and at the Royal Army Medical College, Netley. From this last institution he passed first-class into the Indian Medical Service, and was promoted to his present rank first on his list in his Presidency, shortly after which he retired.

He has had various important Government appointments, has acted as Professor of Materia Medica and

Surgeon to European General Hospital, Bombay; Civil Surgeon and Superintendent of gaol, Aden; and has faithfully served his country in India, Arabia, Beluchistan, and Burmah. During the Burmese war he was senior medical officer with the Frontier Brigade at Bhamo, on the remote borders of China, with the Mougong Expedition, and various flying columns. On two occasions his horse was killed in action He was mentioned in despatches, and received a medal and two clasps when the war was over.

An enthusiastic Freemason from the Fortrose Lodge of Stornoway, he has been Worshipful Master of the Masonic Lodge at Aden, and afterwards Grand Master of Ceremonies of all Scottish Freemasonry in India.

One of the widest of travellers, partly on Government service and partly for love of adventure on his own account, he has crossed sandy deserts, thick forests, and climbed high mountains, including the famous volcano of Popocatepetl, in Mexico, 18,000 feet, which rivals St. Elias, in Alaska, in claiming to be the highest mountain in the whole continent of North America.

During the critical time when war was pending between France and Siam, accompanied only by native servants, he travelled through parts of Borneo and the wilds of Siam, and, passing through regions never previously visited by Europeans, he safely reached the Great Mekong river and, later on, the China Sea, after a trying and dangerous journey.

Shortly after the Afghan war, he made a forced cross-country ride through a difficult mountainous country from Sibi in Scinde to Thull-Chotiali in Beluchistan, and was then the first European to cross over the Zembar Pass, single-handed, though a reconnoitring party in force had crossed it once before, commanded, as it happened, by the late General (then Colonel) Sir Charles Macgregor, whose elegy is given here in dead-march time.

Picking up a native at Gamboli at the foot of the Pass, who was prevailed upon to guide him, he attempted this journey as a shorter route to his destination. But the country was so disturbed at the time, that the guide afterwards got frightened, and deserted him. He consequently lost his way, but eventually succeeded in reaching the British outpost, with a single trooper of the Scinde Horse as his only escort from Gamboli.

Changes of fortune and narrow escapes by land and sea have been indeed very much his portion in former days, many of which, when not on active service, have been duly recorded in some of his own books. He was on board the "City of Paris," for instance, then the largest ship in the world, when she got water-logged, and nearly foundered crossing the Atlantic, with three thousand tons of water on board of her when she was rescued; and it was he that wrote the description of the disaster that appeared in the Times of that date.

Though his life, till of late years, has been very much a life of action, Colonel Macgregor has written a good deal, more especially of travel and verse, and he still writes on various subjects, both in Gaelic and English.

Besides numerous articles, poems, and short stories in various periodicals, enough to make several volumes, he is the author of "Through the Buffer State," a record of travel through Borneo, Siam, and Cambodia. This book took the leading place when reviewed by the Athenæum, the principal critical journal, and was probably the best book of travel of its year.

He also wrote "Toil and Travel," a record of wanderings through several out-of-the-way countries; "The Girdle of the Globe," a poem of adventure in ten cantos; "De Morte Gladiatoris," a poem; and "Luinneagan Luaineach," a book of Gaelic verse, expressly written in distant lands to keep the Gaelic language in his memory. This device succeeded so well that he returned home a better Gaelic scholar than when he left, and a Gaelic poet besides.

As a Gaelic poet, perhaps the best known of his songs is "Tir nam Beann-ard," not because it is his best by any means, but because it is more often sung at Highland gatherings; "Beannachd leis na Beanntan," purporting to be written when leaving the Highlands, and "Ceud Failte do m' Dhuthaich," on first returning there after fourteen long years of continuous foreign service, as well as many others, are quite as good, and perhaps even better, though not till now set to music, and therefore not so familiarly known.

He is one of the few Gaelic bards who has succeeded to any great extent in writing Gaelic verse with real rhymes, such as "Tir nam Beann-ard" and "Beannachd leis na Beanntan," while "Smaointean Diomhair," and the Gaelic version of General Sir Charles Macgregor's Lament, are two examples of real rhymes in double syllables, a very rare thing in Gaelic. Being almost all written abroad, the Gaelic poems sometimes take the colour of their surroundings, such as the lyric on cholera, and others, while they also claim to have been written in more varied parts of the world than those of almost any other poet, ancient or modern.

As Clan bard he wrote in 1903 "An Ode on the Battle of Glenfruin," to celebrate the 300th anniversary of that fateful conflict. This ode appeared at the time in the Scotsman and several north country journals, and is greatly prized by the members of the Clan. We give it here, and "The Storming of Dargai," which also appeared at the time of that stirring incident, as a couple of simple samples of his English patriotic verse.

But though most closely associated with his own Clan as Honorary Bard and a Director of the Clan Gregor Society, he has taken the warmest interest in whatever conduces to the welfare and good fellowship of his fellow Highlanders, altogether apart from individual Clans, and has always lamented the downfall and desolation of the Highlands. He is Honorary President of the Lewis and Harris Association and of the Paisley Gaelic Club, Vice-President of the Glasgow Gaelic Musical Association, Patron of the Edinburgh University Shinty Club, ex-Vice-President of the Gaelic Society of London and of the "Comunn Gaidhealach," for the preservation of the Gaelic language; member of the Highland Society of London and of the Society of Authors, &c.

In 1896 Colonel Macgregor married Mabel Phœbe Annie Mary, elder daughter of the late Samuel Hyde Parrish and Elizabeth Mary O'Brien, Ravensworth, Essex. He has two sons, Alastair Alpin Douglas and Iain O'Brien; and two daughters, Jessie Alpina and Margaret Helen Mabel. He has always been a genuine Highlander, fond of his country, the Gaelic language, and the loyal race from which he springs.

Ach ged is falbh dhomh bho chriochan Albainn,
Air-leam nach searg bhuam, air muir no tir,
An gaol gun ghò thug mi dhuthaich m' oige,
'S cho fad 's is beo mi bhios daingeann, fior ;
'S ged dh-eireadh buaireas no bas mu 'n cuairt dhiom,
'S ged bhiodh an cruaidh-fhortan goirt 'g am chlaoidh,
Bidh mise dileas do thir mo shinnsear,
Le gaol nach diobair mi-fhein a chaoidh.

Cha-n fhios an till mi, cha-n fhios an till mi,
Cha-n fhios an till mise chaoidh gu bràth,
Ach ma 's e bàs dhomh, ceud soraidh slan leis
An dream a b' fhearr leam toirt buaidh air càch ;
Biodh sibhse treun mar bu dual d' ur treubhan,
Toirt gradh d' a cheile le speis nach gann,
'S gu 'n tig an tim anns an eigin striochdadh,
Biodh sibhse dileas do Thir nam Beann.

Ach 's coir dhomh tamh bho bhi seinn an dàn so,
Gu fior 'tha fagail mo chridhe trom,
Le run bhi 'g eiridh mar Ghaidheal eudmhor,
Os ceann gach eigin a dh-eireas rium ;
'S mar sin cha chaomh leam bhi caoidh no caoineadh,
Ach seasmhach daonnan le gaol nach traigh,
'S a chaoidh gu' n till mi 's gu 'm bliath a' chill mi,
Bidh durachd m' inntinn do ghlinn mo ghraidh.

'S do 'n iodhal-aoraidh oillteil, bhreun,
Cha sleuchdainn sios gu deonach ;
'S gur tric a dh-fhag e mise tinn
Bhi cluinntinn sgreach an canain,
Oir O, os ceann gach cainnt a's binn,
Gur binn leam-fhein a' Ghaidhlig !

Thoir dhomhsa mointeach choir an fhraoich,
'S a' ghaoth bhiodh fallain, fialaidh,
Ri seideadh suas tre thir nan laoch,
Le slainte sgaoilt' fo 'sgiathan ;
'S biodh acasan 'an tirean cein,

O 's iomadh bliadhna thriall a null,
Bho dh-fhag mi fonn mo dhuthcha,
'S chaidh iomadh caraid caomh air chall,
Bho thionndaidh mi mo chul riut ;
Tha pairt dhiubh anns a' chuan 'n an tamh,
Us pairt 'an cearnan ceine,
'S mo chreach, nach faic mi chaoidh gu brath,
Am pairt a b' fhearr leam fein dhiubh.

Cha b' ann gu dearbh 'an laithean aois,
A chlaon iad as gun eifeachd,
Ach gearrta sios air cuan us raoin,
Gu 'n chaochail iad 'n an treunachd ;
'S gur iomadh teaghlach truagh fo bhron,
A dh-fhag iad leonta, cianal,
Ri gul 's ri caoidh na suinn a sheol,
'S nach till iad beo gu siorruith.

Seadh, dh-fhalbh iad sud 's cha d-fhag 'n an deigh
An leithid fhein 'n an àite,
'S gur tric a bhios mo chridhe reubt',

Gu caoimhneil, caomh, mar b' àbhaist,
Ge cian a null bho Thir an Fhraoich
A dh'aog iad fad bho 'n cairdean.

Cha-n 'eil, cha-n 'eil iad ann ni 's mò,
Gidheadh gur mor mo run-sa
Do thir mo ghraidh, 's am b' abhaist leo
Bhi comhnuidh cridheil, sunntach ;
'S ge d-fhas mo cheum, a ghaoil, cho fann,
Gu direadh beanntan arda,

THE BATTLE OF GLENFRUIN.

A COMMEMORATION ODE on the 300th anniversary of the Battle of Glenfruin. Dedicated to Lieutentant Sir Malcolm Macgregor of Macgregor, Bart., Royal Navy (Chief of the Clan), and to the Clangregor Society, by their Honorary Bard.

This was the famous Clan battle fought on the 7th February, 1603, the victory of which by the Macgregors, over greatly superior numbers, led to the cruel persecution of the Clan, and the abolition of their name under penalty of death, till it was finally revived by a special Act of Parliament in 1774. It is probably the only name in the annals of history that ever rose from the dead, after being buried, so to speak, for nearly two hundred years; as it is also the only one in the United Kingdom privileged to carry the crown on its crest in recognition of ancient royalty:—

I.

With mingled thoughts of joy and woe
We hail once more that stormy day,
When, three long hundred years ago,
Was fought Glenfruin's fateful fray;
That doomed Clan-Alpine's royal line
To be deprived of name and land,
Betrayed by traitors' dark design,
And vile usurpers' ruthless hand.

II.

Though few they were, compared with those
Who gloried in their hoped-for fall,
Our fearless fathers faced their foes,
And there opposed them one and all;
And if in self-defence they drew
The sword, and slew with might and main,
Not theirs the crime—but of the crew
That on Glenfruin's field were slain.

III.

Methinks I see the warrior band,
Surprised—yet not at all dismayed,
As on they rushed, with sword in hand,
In that wild, furious charge they made;
Methinks I hear their slogan's roar:—
"Ard-Choille," while they closed in fight,
Until the field reeked red with gore,
And fled their foes in hopeless flight.

IV.

Ill-fated day, with triumph crowned,
Yet clouded with results so grave,
In years to come, when Fortune frowned
And rudely trampled down the brave;
Who fell a prey to worthless laws
That lacked regard for justice due,
And suffered for the sacred cause
For which they warred so staunch and true.

V.

But as the Phœnix from the fire
Arises into life again,
E'en so the brave, through trials dire,
Will often rise from grief and pain;
For heroes, since the days of old,
Come forward for the hour of strife,
To wrestle with the wrongs untold,
With which this woeful world is rife.

VI.

And if 'tis not to heroes all
Is granted to command success;
If not a few are doomed to fall
By lurking foes, in sore distress:
Yet, e'en when dead, their fame survives,
To keep alive the fiery glow,
That marked the tenor of their lives
Against the wiles that laid them low.

VII.

We pledge ourselves with loyal zeal,
Due homage to our Chief to pay,
While each and all, for woe or weal,
Shall cleave together—come what may:
So was it with our sires of old,
Those stormy years that now are fled;
So be it of our sons re-told,
When we, their sires, lie cold and dead.

VIII.

The Royal Unicorn is ours,
And ours the Lion, crowned, for crest;
The antlered Stag, that lightly scours
Along the heath-clad mountain's breast;
Our badge—"Clan Alpine's Honored Pine,"
So fresh and fair, and fadeless green:
These be the emblems of our line,
And such, since ancient times, have been.

IX.

Mere gilded lords may spring from naught,
As creatures of created kings;
But yet an older stock than that
Lived long before such modern things;
The offspring of the kings of old,
The Clan that died—and rose again!
Within our royal selves we hold
The oldest and the noblest strain.

X.

Though long, alas, our tribal star
Was wrapped in clouds of awful gloom,
Macgregor still, in peace and war,
Shall flourish with untarnished bloom;
On Highland heath while grows our Pine,
Or blows the breeze through Lowland vale,
So long shall old Clan-Alpine shine
In many a fireside song and tale.

XI.

And thus throughout our lives' brief round,
Where'er on earth our footsteps stray,
Be ours to live in honour bound
To be as faithful found as they;
Who fought through conflicts dark and drear,
Against the fearful wrongs they bore,
And left to us, through far and near,
Proud memories of the years of yore.

XII.

For though our fathers' lifeless clay
Has mingled with their parent dust,
To us they have bequeathed for aye
A solemn and a sacred trust—
The trust to guard with watch and ward,
The heirloom of their warlike fame,
And treasure, with devout regard,
The magic of their matchless NAME!

THE STORMING OF DARGAI.

(Dedicated to the Gordon Highlanders).

The path was rough, the rocks were high,
And hard it was, I ween, to scale them,
And woe to those who climbed Dargai,
If that last try should likewise fail them;
A deadly space was placed between,
Swept ever by the foemen's firing,
And those who dared to cross that scene,
The moment next might lie, expiring.

For there, upon the topmost height,
Were hordes of warlike tribes assembled,
Beneath whose deadly aim and sight
The stoutest wights might well have trembled;
Concealed among the rocks so sure,
And well inured to toils and dangers,
They vainly deemed themselves secure
Against the rudest brunt of strangers.

Again, again our brave troops tried,
But failed to climb those rocks and boulders,
Till to his men Mathias cried,
And thus addressed his Highland soldiers:
"The General says that yonder post
(However hostile they may make it)
Must taken be at any cost—
The Gordon Highlanders will take it."

Then rose the slogan, loud and shrill,
On Highland heath that oftimes sounded,
And to its wild and warlike thrill
The Highland soldiers forward bounded:
The bagpipes played with all their might,
And Findlater fell limp and gory;
But still, to cheer his mates to fight,
He skirled his pipes for death or glory.

The hissing shot came down like hail,
And promptly killed or lamed full many,
But yet must not the remnant fail
To force their way, while spared was any;
On, on—though panting do not pause,
And let your arms brook no denial,
For Victory forsakes the cause
Of those who pause in hour of trial.

"Cock o' the North" the bagpipes blew,
"Cock o' the North" the rocks repeated,
Which, when they heard, the tribesmen knew
Their braves were sure to be defeated.
A trackless route, a steep, steep climb,
With gallant comrades dead or dying,
Till now arrives the wished-for time:
The Gordons charge—their foes are flying!

Blest be the dead, who bravely died
To keep alive our Highland glory;
Blest be the living, who abide
To tell their fine heroic story.
We bless you for your valour's sake,
With all the praise that we can make it,
And trust, when there's a prize at stake,

Rev. NORMAN MACLEOD, D.D.

(Of St. Columba Parish Church, Glasgow).

"CARAID NAN GAIDHEAL."

1783-1862.

THE MacLeods of Morven are reputed to be descendants of the family of Assynt. Mackenzie, while setting down this tradition in his "History of the MacLeods," says that the first of the family of Morven of whom he could find any trace was Donald MacLeod of Swordale, in the parish of Durinish, Isle of Skye, armourer to Norman MacLeod XIX. of MacLeod. He was known, and is spoken of to this day in Skye, as "An Gobhainn Mor," a name ascribed to him, not only on account of his powerful physique, but also for his skill and dexterity as an armourer and swordmaker. In addition to the duties of his profession, he was manager of several of his chief's farms in Skye and Harris, and also tacksman of Swordale—or, as it is sometimes called, "Swordland."

He took part in the '45 Rising, but MacLeod of MacLeod being ranged on the Hanoverian side, Swordale's efforts on behalf of Prince Charlie were rendered abortive.

His eldest son was the Rev. Norman MacLeod of Morven, who was born in the fateful year 1745. He was ordained minister of the parish of Morven on the 23rd of November, 1775, and died on the 5th of March, 1824.

> "A man he was to all the country dear,
> And passing rich with forty pounds a year."

His parish comprised 130 square miles, with a seaboard of 100 miles, and over this extensive track of country he ministered for forty-nine years to 2000 souls. Although for some time after entering on his charge the stipend was only £40, it was afterwards £80, and before his death reached £150, in addition to which there was a good glebe.

In 1777 Norman MacLeod married Jean, daughter of John Morrison of Achnaba. They had a family of sixteen children, of whom four were sons. The eldest son died in infancy. The second son, Norman, "Caraid nan Gaidheal," was born on the 2nd December, 1783. He was educated at home and in the University of Glasgow. In 1804 he entered the Divinity Hall of Edinburgh University, and in 1806, when in his twenty-third year, he was licensed by the Presbytery of Mull. Soon afterwards he was appointed assistant in the parish of Kilbrandon, and in June, 1808, he was ordained to the first charge of Campbeltown, Kintyre. In 1825 he was translated to Campsie, near Glasgow, where his ministry was most successful, and there was great regret in the parish when in 1836 he accepted a call to the Gaelic congregation in Glasgow, then known as the Ingram Street Church, from its place of meeting, and afterwards named St. Columba's Church. The same year he was made a D.D. by his Alma Mater, and chosen Moderator of the General Assembly. He was also appointed Dean of the Chapel Royal and one of Her Majesty's Chaplains, in which capacity he preached before the late Queen and the Prince Consort at Blair Atholl during their visit to Scotland in 1842. Dr. MacLeod took a leading part in the Church Courts in the eventful years that preceded the Disruption of 1843. He adhered to the Establishment, and the bonds of sympathy and affection which knit the pastor and his people are evidenced by the fact that while most of the Gaelic-speaking people of the Northern Highlands went over to the Free Church, the St. Columba congregation was not in the least affected.

In a series of autobiographical reminiscences which he dictated in old age to one of his daughters, Dr. MacLeod gives an account of some of his experiences while endeavouring to establish schools in destitute places in the Hebrides:— . . . "In the spring of 1824, a contention, carried on with great party warmth, took place among the leading men in Edinburgh, about the election of Moderator to the ensuing General Assembly. When Principal Baird, Dr. Inglis, and others (the leaders of the Moderate party in the Church) applied to me for my support and influence, I replied that I could on no account support them as a party, for they had never given me any support in matters connected with the Highlands, which I had repeatedly brought under their notice, and they had declined in an especial manner to assist the efforts which were then being made to obtain a quarto edition of the Gaelic Scriptures, although it had been repeatedly brought under their notice; and that after explaining to them the grievance of having only a Bible of so small a text as a 12mo edition, which no one advanced in life could read, I received for answer from the leader of that party (on which I thought I had made some impression, as he walked in his drawing-room, before breakfast): 'That is the breakfast bell; just advise your Highland friends to get spectacles.'

"The subject came under discussion again that day, and it ended by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge most generously coming forward and offering to give us the long wished for quarto volume, to our great joy, and somewhat to the annoyance of our opponents.

"Dr. Stewart, of Luss, was appointed Convener of the Committee chosen to carry out the resolution, and no better man for the purpose could be found in the Church. I and several others were associated with him in the work, and I did my best to aid him; but to him belongs the praise for the perfect manner with which it was executed.

"It was during the sittings of this Assembly that I resisted all the applications made to me by Principal Baird to throw in whatever little influence I possessed in support of the Moderate interests, unless he and his party would aid us in promoting the education of the people in the Highlands and Islands, where a melancholy destitution of the means of education prevailed.

"We got up a public supper, at which all the members, lay and clerical, from the Highlands were present. We drew up an address to the Principal and his friends, in which they were requested to institute a scheme for the promotion of education in the Highlands and Isles.

"As several overtures to that effect had been forwarded to the Assembly, and would be discussed in the course of the following week, when Dr. Inglis was to bring forward his motion in reference to the Indian scheme, the worthy Principal instantly consented to be chairman in an Educational Scheme for the Highlands and Islands, but with this condition, that he should not be asked to speak in the General Assembly. As I was in possession of all the facts connected with educational destitution in the Highlands, he put into my hands the "Educational Statistics," by Lord Brougham, which were very voluminous and valuable. I at once agreed to the request made by the Principal and several of my Highland friends, that I should bring this matter under the notice of the General Assembly."

Dr. MacLeod's strenuous endeavours resulted in Gaelic Schools being established throughout the Highlands. It was in this connection that his first Gaelic book was published in 1828, being a "Collection for use in Highland Schools." Then followed "Leabhar nan Cnoc" in 1843. In 1829 he started a Gaelic monthly magazine, "An Teachdaire Gaelach"—"The Gaelic Messenger"—which continued for two years. In 1840 he issued "Cuairtear nan Gleann," which lasted for two years and seven months. His contributions to these magazines, as well as those to "Fear Tathaich nam Beann," were published in a collected form in 1867, edited by his son-in-law, the late Dr. Clerk of Kilmallie, and entitled, "Caraid nan Gaidheal." This volume comprises a biographical sketch from the pen of his gifted son, the late Dr. Norman MacLeod, of the Barony, Glasgow. In 1831 he issued the well-known Gaelic Dictionary, which he prepared along with Principal Dewar, Aberdeen. Along with an Irish scholar, Mr. Thaddeus Connellan, Dr. MacLeod translated the Psalms for the Protestant Church of Ireland. He is admitted to be the best of the writers of Gaelic prose. Of "Long mhor nan Eilthireach," in which is described the affecting scene that occurred on an emigrant ship about to sail with people evicted from homes in the west Highlands, Professor Blackie says that "for graceful simplicity and profound pathos, it is second to nothing that I know in any language, unless, indeed, it be the account of the death of Socrates in Plato's Phaedo and some well-known chapters in the Gospel of St. John." He is the author of "Fiunary," a song equally popular in English and Gaelic. The Gaelic translation in common use was by the late Archibald Sinclair, printer and publisher, Glasgow. Among Dr. MacLeod's services to the Highlands mention must be made of the great efforts put forth by him to relieve the suffering people during the famine of 1836-7, and again in 1846-7. His labours for Highlanders secured for him the enviable sobriquet of "Caraid nan Gaidheal."

In 1811 Dr. MacLeod was married to Agnes Maxwell, eldest daughter of James Maxwell, Aros, Mull, Chamberlain to the Duke of Argyll. They had a family of five sons and six daughters. The eldest son was Rev. Norman MacLeod, D.D., of the Barony Church, Glasgow, who was distinguished as a pastor, a poet, a preacher, an editor, an orator, and a novelist. The other sons are Colonel John N. MacLeod, of Glensaddel, Kintyre; the late Sir George H. B. MacLeod, M.D., who was Regius Professor of Surgery in the University of Glasgow, and Surgeon to the Queen in Scotland; Rev. Donald MacLeod, D.D., minister of Park Parish Church, Glasgow, for many years editor, and now joint-editor of "Good Words." The eldest daughter was married to the late Archibald Clerk, LL.D., minister of Kilmallie.

Dr. MacLeod died at Glasgow, on 25th November, 1862, in the 80th year of his age and 57th of his ministry.

Is mi am aon'ran bochd leam féin;
Cha'n iarr mi tàmh, cha'n fhaigh mi lochd,
In mi fo sprochd an dùthaich chéin.

Is iomadh cuimhne thùrsach, throm,
Dhomh dùsgadh fonn a' bhròin gu goirt;
'S e thog an osna so am chom,
Nach 'eil mi 'n Tir nam Beann an nochd.

Tha Tìr nam Beann mar bha i riamh—
Gach gleann, is sliabh, is creag nam faobh,
An creachann àrd 's am bi am fiadh,
'S an leacann liath tha slos o 'thaobh.

Tha fòs gach allt a' leum le toirm,
Bho chreig gu creig a slos gu tràigh ;
Tha bàrr an fhraoich le 'bhadain ghorm'
Gu trom 's gu dosrach mar a bha.

Ach c' àit' a bheil na cairdean gràidh,
D' an tug mi bàigh an laithean m' òig' ?
'S e fath mo mhulaid is mo chràidh
A mheud 's a tha dhiubh nochd fo'n fhòid.

An t-athair thog mi suas ri 'thaobh
'S mo mhathair chaomh cha'n 'eil iad ann ;
Is dh' fhalbh mo cho-aoisean gu léir
Mar cheò roimh 'n ghréin air uchd nam beann.

Mo chreach cha'n 'eil iad air an t-saogh'l
A dheanadh aobhach mis' an nochd.

Ach tha iad beò an dùthaich chéin,
Tìr ard na gréin, gun oidhch' a chaoidh,
Is coinnichidh sinn ri ùin' a chéil,
Gun sùil fo dheur, gun chridh a' caoidh.

Tha àl a falbh is àl a' teachd,
Mar shlachdraich mhear nan tonn air tràigh ;
Ar bliadhnaichean, tha iad gu léir
Mar bhruadar faoin, no sgeul gun stà.

Ach gloir do Shlan'ghear caomh nam buadh,
A thug a nuas o thìr an aigh
Deagh sgeul an aoibhnis-mhoir do 'n t-sluagh,
Air beatha bhuan nach mill am bàs.

Choisinn e bheatha so gu daor,
An uair a thaom gu lar as 'fhuil ;
Ach O ! cia gràsmhor, fialaidh saor,
Do'n chinne-dhaonn' a h-àgh 's a bhuil !

C' ar son a bhithinn brònach, bochd,
A' caoidh fo sprochd an so leam féin ?
Do shùil, a Dhé, tha orms' an nochd,
Fo dheòrachd bhochd an dùthaich chéin.

Cha bhi mi caoidh cha toir mi géill ;
Fo thaic do sgéith gun iarr mi tàmh ;
Do thoil-sa deanar leam, a Dhé.
Ga m' strìochdadh féin a chaoidh fo d' làimh.

BLAR CHUIL-FHODAIR.

'S tha fuil nam fear geala fo bhonnaibh nan daoi.

Tha 'm breacan 's an t-éileadh leis an d' éiteadh na sàir
Le marcaichimh Shasuinn air an saltairt ri làr ;
Tha 'n suaicheantas uasal a chòmhdaich na suinn,
Ri fhaicinn 'san àraich, gun àilleachd, gun loinn.

Ann an dùthaich nam mòr-bheann tha uamhas is caoidh ;
Luchd nam boineid 's nam breacan cha 'n fhaicear a chaoidh,
Na fiùrain bu tréine nach geilleadh 's iad beò
Tha sìnt' air Cuil-fhodair gun phlosg is gun deò.

'S bidh iomradh do chruadail air a luaidh gu là 'bhràth.

TORRADH SHIR IAIN MOORE.

(Bho 'n Bheurla).

Cha chualas fonn téise no bròn air a' Mhùr,
Mar thog sinn a chorp air ar guailnibh ;
Cha do loisgeadh urchair le saighdear mu'n ùir ;
Druma cha chualas a' bualadh.

Thlodhlaiceadh esan 'an uaigneas na h-oidhch',
Airm chatha a' cladhach na h-ùrach,
A' ghealach gu fann troi' neulaibh a' soills',
Leus soluis 'g ar seòladh gu tùrsach.

Cha robh feum aig an laoch air cist a bhiodh buan,
No ollanachd anairt g' a chuairteach' ;
Ach luidh e mar ghaisgeach a' gabhail a shuain,
Le 'thrusgan cogaidh mu 'n cuairt air.

B' aithghearr, 's bu tearc an ùrnuigh 'chaidh suas,
'Us shil sinn na deòir gu sàmhach,
Ag amharc air creubh an tréin a thug buaidh,
'Us buairte mu theachd an là màireach.

Oir thug sinn fainear a' cladhach na h-uaigh',
'S mar bha sinn gu truagh 'g a dealbhadh,
Gu 'n deanadh coigrich a saltairt le fuath,
Agus sinn' air a' chuan a' seòladh.

Le tàir air a spioraid gu 'n deanadh an nàmh,
Air an uaigh so suidhe 'g a chàineadh;
Ach 's suarach sin dha-san a' gabhail a thàimh
Far an d' rinn a luchd-dàimh a chàradh.

Ghairmeadh air falbh sinn o obair a' bhròin,
'Us cian mu 'n robh crioch air an tòrradh,
Chuala sinn toirm a' chogaidh 'teachd oirnn,
'Us gaoir nan gunnacha mòra.

Ach leig sinn e slos gu h-athaiseach, ciùin,
Mar thuit e an tréin' a mhòrachd,
Gun leac-lighe r'a cheann, gun chàrn os a chionn,
Ach slnte le 'ghlòir 'n a ònrachd.

IAIN GILPIN.

(Bho 'n Bheurla).

Iain Gilpin bha 'na bhùirdeiseach,
Bu mhòr a chliù 's a nì;
Gu'n robh e uair 'na cheannard-ceud,
'Am baile-mòr an rìgh.

Thuirt bean Iain Ghilpin là r'a gràdh,
"M' aighear thu 's mo chiall,
Ged tha sinn fichead bliadhna pòsd',
Là féill' cha d' ghabh sinn riamh.

"'S e 'm màireach là co'-ainm ar bainns',
Théid sinn gu sùgradh 'mach,
Sìos gus an ruig sinn Edmonton,
'An carbad an dà eich.

"Mo phiuthar is a leanabh mic,
Mi féin 's mo thriùir le chéil',
S a' charbad théid, is leanaidh tus'
A' marcachd as ar déigh."

"A bhean mo ghaoil!" ghrad fhreagair e,
"Dhuit féin gu'n d' thug mi gràdh
Os ceann gach té a tha fo'n ghréin,
Is gheibh thu mar is àill.

"Tha mise 'm mharsanta gu beachd,
Mar 's aithne do gach neach;
'S mo charaid maith Tom Callander
Bheir iasad dhomh d'a each."

"Piseach ort," ars' is', "a ghràidh,
Is o'n 'tha 'm fìon co daor,
Gu'n toir mi leam mo shearrag féin,
O' n 'tha e maith, is saor."

Thug Iain sgailce pòige dh' i,
Mar b' àbhaist dha gu tric;
Oir bha e subhach toilichte,
I bhi co crìonna ghlic.

Thàinig an carbad 'nuas gu moch
'S a' mhaduinn mar a gheall;
'S air falbh 'n a dheann-ruith ghabh e leo,
Troimh eabar, is troimh pholl

Bu shiùbhlach luath na cuibhleachan,
'S a' chuip mu chluas' nan each,
Le gleadhraich shaoileadh tu gu'n robh
An cabhsair as a bheachd.

Sheas Iain Gilpin taobh an eich,
Is ghlac e 'mhuing gu deas;
Ach 's gann a fhuair e suas gu h-àrd,
'Nuair b' éiginn teachd air ais.

Cha luaith' a ràin' e 'n dìollaid shuas,
Le 'thulchainn air an each,
Na chunnaic e triùir cheannaichean
D'a bhùth a' dol a steach.

Theirinn e, 's cha b' ann d'a dheòin,
Oir bha e dian gu falbh;
Ach leis an t-sannt cha dùraigeadh e
An sgillinn-ruadh a chall.

Bu mhàidheanach na ceanaichean,
Bha greis mu 'n robh iad réidh;
'N sin Beati ghlaodh a mach gu h-àrd,
"Dh' fhàgadh am fìon 'n ar déigh!"

'Nall e!" ars' Iain, "'s maith an t-àm;
Thoir dhomh a nuas mo chrios,
Crios leathair mo dheagh chlaidheimh ghéir,
'Nuair bha mi 'm shaighdear deas."

Bha aig bean Ghilpin (làmh a' ghrùnnd!),
Dà shearraig làidir ghlas,
'S am b' àbhaist d'i an deoch a b' fhèarr
A chumail teann fo ghlais.

Bha aig gach searraig dhiubh fa leth,
Dà chluais tre 'n deach' an crios;
Is chroch e iad mar sin r'a thaobh,
Té dhiubh air gach leis.

Na dheaghaidh sin, a chum is gu 'm biodh
E sgeadaichte le sgoinn,
A chleòca maiseach sgàrlaid ghabh,
Is thilg e air a dhruim.

Faic e 'nis 'na dhìollaid shuas,
Air muin an steud-eich dhuinn,
Ag imeachd air a' chabhsair chruaidh
Gu socrach, is gu ciùin.

Ach 'nuair a fhuair e 'n t-slighe réidh
Fo 'bhròg aibh cruidheach cruaidh,
Le sitrich dh' fhalbh gu trotan garbh
'Rùisg màsan Iain thruaigh.

"Gu réidh," ars' Iain, "deas de! 'eich dhuinn:"
Ach labhair e gun fheum,
A throtan chaidh gu dian-ruith luath,
Gun suim do mhuiseal sréin'.

Chrom e 'sìos, mar dh' imreas iad
Nach urrainn suidhe 'suas,
Ghlac e muing an eich gu teann,
'S e dol a nis 'n a luath's.

An t-each a mhothaich air a dhruim
Uallach cho deacair ùr,
Theich e le geilt; 's mar theich e, dh' fhàg
E 'n saoghal air a chùl.

Air falbh chaidh Iain 'n a shradaibh dearg',
Air falbh chaidh 'n ad 's a' ghruag;
Is beag a shaoil an duine còir
A dhol air a' leithid do ruaig.

Chaidh coin gu tathunn, 's clann gu sgriach,
Bha cinn a mach 'n an ceud,
Is ghlaodh gach aon, le 'uile neart,
"'S tu féin an gille-steud!"

Air falbh chaidh Iain, cò ach e?
Na miltean air a thòir:
"Is réis tha 'n so! 's cha lugha 'n geall,
Na mile bonn do 'n òr!"

'S a nis, 'nuair dhlùthaich e gu dàn'
Air luchd na cìse cruaidh,
'An tiota thilg iad fosgailte
A' chachaileith gu luath.

'Nuair chrom e sìos os ceann an eich
Le 'cheann 'n a smùidibh teth,
Bhuail an dà shearraig air a chùl,
Is spealg 'n am mile bloidh.

Bu mhuladach an sealladh so,
Am fion dearg mar a dhòirt,
'Thug smùid á cliathaich an eich dhuinn,
Mar cheithreamh muilt-fheòilròist'.

Gidheadh bha e mar mharcaiche,
A' ruith na réis le 'chrios,
Is amhaichean dà shearraig ghlais,
Ag udal air a leis.

Mar so troimh bhaile Islington,
Faic e le mire 'triall,
Is fòs a suas troimh Edmonton,
'S a stigh feadh lub nan giadh.

'S ann ann an sin bha 'phlubartaich,
'S an t-each a' diùltadh smachd,
Mar sgaoth do gheòidh no 'thunnagan
'Gan lubradh féin le tlachd.

Aig uinneig ann an Edmonton
Gu'n d' sheas a bhean a suas,
Is chunnaic i dol seachad e
Le iongantas r'a luath's.

"Stad, stad, Iain Ghilpin, so an tigh!"
Gu'n d' ghlaodh iad uile ris,
"Tha 'n dinneir deas 's tha sinne sgìth;"
"Cha lùgh',; ars' Iain, "tha mis'!"

Ach 's beag an t-suim a ghabh an t-each,
De ghlaodh nam ban gu léir,
Bha prasach mhaith a mhaighstir féin
Deich mil' air falbh aig Ware.

Mar shaighead luath o làimh na treòir,
O'n iughar righinn chruaidh,
Gu'n d' theich an t-each—'s tha so 'ga m' thoirt
Gu darna leth mo dhuain.

Air falbh chaidh Iain le séideadh àrd,
'S gu dearbh cha b' ann d'a dheòin,
'S aig dorus tigh', Thom Challander,
Gu'n d' sheas an t-each fa-dheòidh.

'Nuair chunnaic esan e mar so,
A' teachd gun ad, gun ghruag,
Thilg e 'phiob thombac' air falbh,
Is ruith e 'mach gu luath.

"Do sgeul, do sgeul—thoir dhomh do sgeul!
Do naidheachd innis dhomh;
C'ar son a tha thu ceann-ruisgte?
C'ar son a tha thu 'n so?"

Bha Iain làn do fheala-dhà,
De shùghradh beag, 's de chleas,
'S a réir so ri Tom Callander,
Gu'n d' fhreagair e gu deas:

"Tha mise 'n so, oir thigeadh t-each,
'S mur 'eil mi 'm fhàidhe bréig',
Bi'dh m' ad 's mo ghruag 'an so gun dáil,
Oir tha iad as mo dhéigh."

Bha sòlas air Tom Callander,
A charaid bhi co ait,
'S cha dubhairt e tuilleadh ris 's an àm,
Ach thill e stigh gu grad.

'S a mach gu'n d' thug e ad is gruag,
Gruag mhòr nan dualan cruinn,
Is ad a's gann a chuir e riamh
Seachd uairean air a cheann.

Chum e suas iad, 's thubhairt e
Le feala-dhà 'n a chainnt;
"Mo cheann-sa tha dhà mheud ri d' cheann-s',
'S théid iad ort gun taing.

"Leig dhomh an t-eabar sin 's am poll
A ghlanadh bhàrr do ghnùis;
Fuirich ri biadh, oir 's cinnteach mi
Gum bheil thu 'call do lùis."

"'S e so," ars' Iain, "co-là mo bhainns',
'S bu sgeigeil e ri ràdh,
Gu'm biodh mo bhean aig Edmonton
'S mise 'n so fo phràmh."

'N sin labhair Iain ris an each,
Tha cabhag orm gu m' bhiadh;
Air t' àilleas thàinig mise 'n so,
Théid thus' air t-ais do m' riar."

O! bòsd na tubaist' a bha 'n so,
Mar dh' fhiosraich e gun dàil;
Oir asail fhad-chluasach bha dlùth
'Thog raoichdeil choimheach àrd.

Le srann gu'n d' thog an t-each a cheann,
Ceart mar roimh leóghann garg;
'S air falbh le 'uile lùs a rìs,
Theich e 'n a shradaibh dearg.

Air falbh chaidh Gilpin, is air falbh
Chaidh 'ad 's a ghruag 'n an deann;
'An tiota thuit iad, chionn gu'n robh
Iad motha 's mòr d'a cheann.

'Nuair chunnaic bean Iain Ghilpin e
A' marcachd nuas co bras,
Tharruing i 'n sporan sìoda mach,
'S bonn leth-chruin thug i as.

'N sin thuirt i ris a' charbadair,
'S a crìdh' le iomaguin làn,
"Gur leatsa so, mo ghille gleusd',
Is thoir air ais e slàn."

Dh' fhalbh e, 's choinnich iad gun dàil,
Is dh' fheuch e 'n t-each a stad,
Ach 's ann a chuir an oidhirp so
An rosad air air fad.

'Nuair dh' fhairtlich air na bha 'n a bheachd
A chur a nis 'an gnìomh;
Gu'n d' chlisg an t-each, 's air falbh gu'n d' theich
Na 's luaith' na rinn e riamh.

Air falbh chaidh Gilpin, is air falbh
An carbadair co bras,
Gun straoidhlich chuibhleachan 'na dhéigh,
Gu meamnach a' dol as.

Bha sèathnar uaislean 'chunnaic e
A' teicheadh air an each,
'S an gille-carbaid air a thòir.
Gu'n d' ghlaodh iad uile 'mach,

"Mèirleach! mèirleach! glacaibh e!"
Gu'n d' ghlaodh iad dh' iarraidh fòir;
Is dh' fhalbh iad féin 's na chunnaic e
'N an teann-ruith air a thòir.

'S a rithist dh' fhosgladh dha gu luath
Cachaileith mhòr na cis';
Oir shaoil na daoine, mar air tùs,
Gu'n robh e 'ruith na réis.

Bha e mar sin, is choisinn e;
Oir fhuair e buaidh le 'luath's:
Cha d' rinn e stad gus 'n d'-ràinig e
An t-àit' an deach' e suas.

Nis seinneamaid fad-shaogh'l do'n rìgh,
'S air Gilpin, gu'n robh àgh;
'S an ath-uair 'theid e mach 'chur réis,
Bu mhaith leam féin 'bhi làthair!

FAREWELL TO FIUNARY!

KEY A Flat.—Moderato, with feeling.

CHORUS—

Eirich agus tiugainn O,
Eirich agus tiugainn O,
Eirich agus tiugainn O
Farewell, farewell to Fiunary!

The wind is fair, the day is fine,
Swiftly, swiftly runs the time;
The boat is floating on the tide
That wafts me off from Fiunary.

A thousand, thousand tender ties—
Accept this day my plaintive sighs;
My heart within me almost dies
At thought of leaving Fiunary.

With pensive steps I've often strolled
Where Fingal's castle stood of old,
And listened while the shepherds told
The legend tales of Fiunary.

I've often paused at close of day
Where Ossian sang his martial lay,
And viewed the sun's departing ray
Wand'ring o'er Dun-Fiunary.

Allt-na-Caillich's gentle stream
That murmurs sweetly through the green,
What happy joyful days I've seen
Beside the banks of Fiunary!

Farewell ye hills of storm and snow,
The wild resorts of deer and roe;
In peace the heath-cock long may crow,
Along the moors of Fiunary.

'Tis not the hills nor woody vales
Alone my joyless heart bewails;
A mournful group this day remains
Within the Manse of Fiunary.

Can I forget Glenturret's name?
Farewell, dear father, best of men:
May Heaven's joys with thee remain
Within the Manse of Fiunary.

Mother! a name to me so dear,
Must I, must I leave thy care,
And try a world that's full of snares,
Far, far from thee and Fiunary?

Brother, of my love, farewell—
Sister, all your griefs conceal—
Your tears suppress—your sorrows quell—
Be happy while at Fiunary.

Archibald, my darling child,
May Heaven thy infant footsteps guide;
Should I return, oh! may I find
Thee smiling still at Fiunary.

Oh must I leave these happy scenes?
See, they spread the flapping sails,
Adieu! adieu! my native plains;
Farewell, farewell to Fiunary!

Dr. JOHN MACLACHLAN.

"The Sweet Singer of Rahoy."

DR. JOHN MACLACHLAN.

"THE SWEET SINGER OF RAHOY."

1804-1874.

DR. JOHN MacLACHLAN was born in the year 1804. Before then shadows had gathered which afterwards darkened and fell upon the Gaelic race. In his youth MacLachlan saw the social condition of the Highlands undergo a great change, and the people cast down by oppression and poverty. Many of his lyrics express the vivid impressions of one who felt keenly for the misery of his people, and the misfortunes brought about by hard-hearted landlords and their minions. Take "The Depopulated Glen" ("Och, och, mar tha mi"), for instance, where the bard sings in a very touching way of a visit paid to the once populous glen where his youth was passed. A lonely, weary, and sad stranger amid familiar and endearing scenes, he laments the changed times. The ancient customs have passed away. The Gaels are dispersed, and Lowland shepherds and sheep are in their place. It is painful to recall that the gloom was still further accentuated when the remnants of the people delivered themselves over to their spiritual guides, who, with a few notable exceptions, always endeavoured to shut out from their lives such sunshine as song and story afford.

But Dr. MacLachlan's poetical gifts were not confined to patriotic effusions alone. In rich, rhythmical cadence he sings of love, and many other themes are brought out by him in melodious verse of enduring popularity. He is known wherever Gaelic is spoken as "The Sweet Singer of Rahoy."

Some time 'after the death of "Nether-Lochaber," Mr. Henry Whyte ("Fionn") examined Dr. Stewart's literary remains, and while doing so found the following scrap bearing on the early history of the bard of Rahoy, and explaining the origin of the popular song "Gur moch rinn mi dusgadh." "Nether-Lochaber's" note is as follows:—

"John MacLachlan, the author of the following song, was the son of the late MacLachlan of Rahoy, in Morven, in his day one of the most respectable men in the county. John was the youngest son, and by profession a surgeon. He composed many beautiful songs well known and admired by the Morven, Mull, and Sunart people, and by all who admire Gaelic poetry, it must be confessed, deservedly so. The circumstances under which the song was composed are peculiar, and to appreciate it aright it is worthy of notice. The poet's friends had applied for a situation for him as assistant surgeon in one or other of the Glasgow hospitals or infirmaries. The application was long of being answered, and the issue doubtful. A vessel was about to sail from Tobermory, Mull, with emigrants for the Cape, in which it was arranged that John should take his passage to try his fortune in another land. The day appointed for sailing had arrived, and mid-day was the hour at which all passengers were ordered to be on board. Our poet, after bidding farewell to his friends, ascended a small hill behind the village of Tobermory, and gave vent to his thoughts and feelings in the song before us. He descended as the hour of sailing approached, and had stept into the barge which lay ready to convey him on board, when a messenger arrived saying that the post of that morning had brought tidings of a favourable answer to his application for the desired situation in Glasgow. With a joyful heart John leapt on shore, returned home, and straightway started for Glasgow, where he remained for some years. Afterwards he returned to his native district, and continued to practise there as a medical man with much success, beloved by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance."

Dr. MacLachlan died at Tobermory in 1874.

GUR MOCH RINN MI DUSGADH.

Key D.—With expression.

Gur moch rinn mi dùsgadh, 's an ùr mhaduinn Chéit',
'S a dhìrich mi 'm bruthach gun duin' ach mi féin;
Tha 'ghrian air a turus a' siubhal troimh 'n speur,
'S dealt na h-oidhche a' tùirlinn thar ùr-dhos nan geug.

A' dìreadh an aonaich ri aodann a' chùirn,
'S binn torman a' chaochain a's aoidheala bùrn,
Le ròis air gach taobh dheth ag aomadh fo 'n driùchd,
'S e ri deàrrsadh na gréine ag éirigh 'na smùid.

'S binn na h-eòin feadh nam preasan gu leadarra 'seinn;
Tha 'n uiseag làn sòlais ri ceòl os mo chionn;
Na ba-laoigh anns a' gheumnaich air an réidhlean ud thall,
'S mac-talla nan creagan 'gam freagairt air ball.

'S àlainn trusgan a' ghlinne suas ri binnean nan stùc;
'S cùbhraidh boltrach nan luibhean 'nam chuinnein mar thùis;
Ged 's bòidheach gach doire anns a' choillidh 's a' bhrùchd,
Ged tha 'm barrach cho ùrail cha dùisg e mo shunnd.

An so air faobhar a' mhullaich gur muladach mi—
Ceann-aobhair mo thuiridh leam gur duilich r' a ìnns';
Nach dìrich mi tuilleadh ri munadh 'san tir—
Nach dìan mi cùis-ghàire 'n gleann àillidh mo chridh'.

Cha' n' eil gleannan cho aoibheil ri fhaotainn mu 'n cuairt,
Le d' bheanntainean àrda 'cur sgàth ort o 'n Tuath ;
Ann an dùdlachd a' gheamraidh gun ghreann ort, gun fhuachd—
Mo sgaradh 's mo chràdh-lot a bhi d' fhàgail cho luath !

Ged is iomadh fear finealt' anns na h-Innsean ud thall,
'Chaidh a dh-iarraidh an stòrais, o 'n tha 'n t-òr oirnn cho gann ;
Am fear ainneamh de 'n àireamh a thig sàbhailt' a nall,
'N a bhodach gun spéirid, odhar, éisleineach, fann.

Air tilleadh do 'n dùthaich, 's e 'dhùisgeas am bròn,
'Bhi 'faicinn m' a choinneimh luchd-comuinn na h-òig',
Cho sunndach, geal, loinneil, ged tha 'ghoinne 'n am pòc—
Gun uireasbhuidh slàinte, ged tha iad gun stòr.

'S mairg a mholadh na h-Innsean 's gach rìoghachd o dheas,
'S am bi cholann 's an inntinn 'g an strìochdadh le teas ;
Far nach urrainn dhuit gluasad gun fhuathas 'us geilt,
Agus uamh-bheist 'g a chùbadh fo dhùiseal nam preas.

'S mi 'ghluaiseadh gun smalan ann an gleannan an àigh—
'S moch a shiùbhlainn do phreasan gun teagamh, gun sgàth ;
Anns an òg mhadainn chùbhraidh, 'nuair bhiodh drùchd air gach bàrr
Nàile dhirinn ri d' stùc bheinn gun chùram roimh nàmh !

Ach 's tiom dhomh bhi 'g éirigh, 's bhi téurnadh o 'n àird ;
Cha dean luinneagan feum dhomh, cha dean éigheach dhomh stàth ;
Feuch am bàta fo còmhdach aig còmhnard na tràigh,
Tha gu m' ghiùlan null thairis á gleannan an àigh.

Bheir mi sùil thar a' bhealaich air na beanntan mu 'n chuairt ;
So an sealladh mu dheireadh air gach gleannan 'us bruach :
A' fàgail leibh beannachd, 'n àm dealachadh uaibh,
A' tèarnadh an aonaich 's iad mo smaointean tha truagh.

Ach 's diomhain mo smuaintean, nach faoin dhomh bhi 'caoidh,
Cha 'n 'eil neach anns an t-saoghal 'g a fhaotainn le 'dhìù ;
Ge blàth an fhuil chraobhach 'tha 'taosgadh o 'm chrìdh,
'S ro ghearr gus nach plosg i fo phlocan 's a' chill.

'Thi 'chruthaich an saoghal, 's a chuir na daoine so ann,
'S a thug dhuinne Fear-saoraidh a dh-aontachadh leinn,
Tha thu 'g éisdeachd ri m' òran cho brònach 'g a sheinn,
Bidh mi 'strìochdadh do d' òrdugh, bheir thu dhomhsa mo roinn

Tha mulad orm, tha mulad orm,
Tha cudthrom air mo chliabh;
'Am shineadh air an tulaich ghuirm,
Air m' uilinn anns an t-sliabh;
A' dearcadh bharr a' mhullaich so
Air a' ghleann 's an d' rugadh mi,
A 'cuimhneachadh na bhuineadh dhomh,
'S gach duine dhiubh air triall.

'S iomadh òigear curanta
A chunnaic mi 's a' ghleann,
Gu lùthor, làidir, fulangach,
Gun uireasbhuidh, gun mheang;
Bu chaoimhneil, càirdeil, duineil iad,
Gu bàigheil, pàirteach, furanach—
An sàr dhuin' uasal urramach

Gum b' fhonnar, binn na h-oigheanan
A' téiseadh ceòl nan teud;
Cha 'n òghnadh mi bhi 'g osnaich,
'S mo chridhe bhi 's a' phlosgartaich;
Air nàile, gur a coltach mi
Ri Oisean 'n déigh na Féinn'.

Tha mulad orm, tha mulad orm,
Gur duine mi gun toirt,
A' cuimhneachadh air m' uireasbh'ean,
Cha 'n urrainn dhomh 'bhi 'tosd;
Am aonaran 's an t-saoghal so,
Gun phruip, gun taic', gun daoin' agam,
'S mi air an udail fhaontraighe,
Mar fhaoilinn feadh nam port.

Tha dealt na h-oidhche 'drùghadh
Air na dh' fhuirich orm de m' chiabh;
Tha 'n speur a' nochdadh rionnagan
Gu tiugh an ear 's an iar;
Ag éirigh thar na tulaich ghuirm,
A teurnadh leis na mullaichean,
Tha mulad orm, tha mulad orm—
Cha 'n urrainn mi 'chur dhiom.

OCH! OCH! MAR THA MI.

KEY F.—Very pathetic.

Och! òch! mar tha mi 'us mi 'nam aonar
A' dol troimh 'n choill far an robh mi eòlach,
Nach fhaigh mi àit' ann am fhearann dùthchais,
Ged phàidhinn crùn airson leud mo bhròige.

Neo-bhinn an fhuaim leam a dhùisg á m' shuain mi,
'S e 'tigh'nn a nuas orm a chruaich na mòr-bheinn—
An ciobair Gallda, 's cha chòrd a chainnt rium,
E 'glaodhaich thall ri cù mall an dòlais.

Moch maduinn chéitein an àm dhomh éirigh,
Cha cheòl air gheugan, no geum air mòintich,
Ach sgreadail bhéisdean 's a chànain Bheurla,
Le coin 'gan éigheach 'cur féidh air fògar.

An uair a chi mi na beanntan àrda,
'S an fhearann àigh 'san robh Fionn a chòmhnuidh,
Cha 'n fhaic mi ann ach na caoraich bhàna,
'Us Goill gun àireamh 'sa h-uile còdhail.

Na gleanntan ciatach 'sam faighteadh fiadhach,
'Us coin air iallan aig gillean òga,
Cha 'n fhaic thu 'n diugh ann ach ciobair stiallach,
'S gur duibhe 'mhiaran na sgiath na ròcais.

O, chaidh gach àbhaist a chur air fuadach ;
Cha chluinn thu gruagach ri duan no òran ;
Nach bochd an nì e gu 'n shearg ar n-uaislean,
'S na balaich shuarach 'nan àitean-còmhnuidh !

An uair a chi mi na lagain àluinn,
'S a h-uile h-àiridh 'dol fàs le còinnich,
Fo bhadain chaorach le 'n uain 'gan àrach
Cha 'n fhaod mi ràdhtainn nach b'fhàidhe Tòmas.*

Mar thannasg fuar i seach a' snàg.

Tha 'n oidhche 'teachd le 'trusgan ciar,—
Tha 'n àirde 'n iar air dol 'n a smàl ;
Thréig an t-séisd 'bha 'm beul gach ian,
Gidheadh cha 'n 'eil mi 'triall o 'n àird.

Tha gach dùil, 's gach cuileag fhaoin
Air gach taobh a' gabhail tàimh ;
Ach mise 'am shìneadh anns an fhraoch,
Fo iomairt smaointean baoth gun stàth.

O'n a thàinig mi do 'n t-saoghal
'S beag a rinn mi 'smaointean glic ;
Mar bhlàth cluarain air an raon,
'Ghluaiseas leis gach gaoith a thig.

Gidheadh tha smaointean tiamhaidh, bochd,
'Nochd a' mosgladh ann am chrìdh',
Tha mar fhàsach falamh, fuar,
'S e gun luaidh air neach, no nì.

Cha 'n 'eil agam leannan gaoil,
No caraid caomh agam fo 'n ghréin,—
Cha 'n 'eil agam bean no clann,
No neach a b' annsa leam na 'cheil',

Amhuil mar bhrùid air a' mhagh,
Gun eagal Dhé, gun ghràdh, gun dùil ;
Cha 'n 'eil cùram air mo chrìdh',
'S mi gun nì 's an cuir mi ùigh.

Ard-Rìgh nam feart tionndam rìut,
A's air mo ghlùinean guidheam ort,—
Deònaich dhomh-sa cridhe nuadh,—
Eisd ri m' ùrniugh thruaigh an nochd.

Dòirt a nuas do Spiorad caomh,—
Ris an t-saoghal bheiream cùl ;
Dhuit a mhàin, O ! thugam gaol,
A' d' Aon Mhac féin, O ! cuiream dùil.

Eisd, a Shlànuighear nam buadh,
Ri ùrnuigh thruaigh a' teachd o m' chrìdh',
Tha mo cheum air slighe 'bhàis,
'Thriath nan gràsan sàbhail mi.

CUMHA.

KEY E.—Slowly, with much feeling.

Thàinig sgeula mo chruadail,
Gu 'n do chuir iad 's an uaigh thu;
'S goirt mo chridhe bho 'n chuala,
Ged nach d' fhuasgail mo dheòir.

Tha do leaba lom, fuaraidh,
'S trom do chadal, 's ro bhuan e;
Chaoidh cha 'n éisd thu ri m' luaidh-sa,
'S cha ghluais thu ri m' cheòl.

Bha do ghluasad gun eucoir,
Gun uireasbhuidh céille;
Leam bu taitneach 'bhi 'g éisdeachd
Ri séisde do bheòil.

Tha do bheul a nis dùinte,
Cha 'n 'eil léirsinn 'n ad shùilibh;
'S fuar an cridhe 'bha mùirneach,
Anns an ùir, 's e gun deò.

Mar bhuannaich am bàs thu
Seach na dilsean 'tha làthair,
Cinnidh feanntag 's a' ghàradh,
'Nuair thig fàilinn 's an ròs.

Sud an ròs a bha cùbhraidh,
Air geug nan dos ùrail ;
B' òg 's a' mhaduinn e 'brùchdadh—
Sheachd 'us shùigh e trà-nòin.

Chuir thu mise gu smaointinn,
Nach innis mi 'dhaoine ;
'S mairg 'chuir ùigh anns an t-saoghal,
'S iomadh caochladh 'teachd oirnn.

Ged tha càirdean gu deurach,
'S faoin an cumha leam féin e,
'Theid gu cuirm 'us cùirt éibhneis,
'Giùlan éideadh a' bhròin.

Ged tha m' éideadh gun mhùthadh,
'S mi gun deur air mo shùilibh,
Gus an cuir iad 's an ùir mi,
Bidh mi 'd ionndrainn ri m' bheò.

Chionn bu toigh leam an nìonag—
Bu ro-thoigh leam an nìonag!
Mo sgeul dubhach ga' innseadh,
Thu 'bhi 'd shìneadh fo 'n fhòid.

NEIL MACLEOD.

THE SKYE BARD.

BORN 1843.

THE chief representative Gaelic bard of to-day is Neil MacLeod, who was born in Glendale, Isle of Skye, in 1843. He was early distinguished for poetic talent, and so was his father, for he is a son of Donald MacLeod, popularly known as "Am Bard Sgitheanach," who published a collection of Gaelic poetry in 1811, when only twenty years of age.

Eviction and clearance had already devastated many parts of the Highlands, but the ruthless methods of the depopulator had not yet been applied to Neil MacLeod's native parish, so in "An Gleann 's an robh mi òg" he gives us a pleasing picture of the social life in a Highland glen in his happy boyhood days; but there is another picture, and with pathos, feeling, and beauty of expression and sentiment the bard sings of "the change 'twixt now and then," and in haunting strains laments the desolated land and banished people.

Though books were few in the Highlands in the fifties and sixties of the nineteenth century, young MacLeod was the happy possessor of a copy of Mackenzie's "Beauties of Gaelic Poetry," which became his auspicious and inseparable friend, and kindled within him the desire, as Burns said, "to sing a sang at least."

Round a glowing peat fire, Highland villagers pass the long winter evenings relating and listening to the legendary lore and traditions of their country. In such meetings the future bard took great delight, and his memory became a storehouse of quaint lore and Ossianic poetry.

"Beyond the Parish School," writes Professor Magnus

MacLean, "for the rest of the knowledge and education he acquired MacLeod had to depend mainly on the Book of Nature and contact with his fellow-men. Like most of his class in Skye, he was obliged to leave home very early, without means and without trade, to seek employment in the South, and for some years had his full share of the toils and drudgery of life. But in 1866 he went to Edinburgh and started in the tea trade with his cousin, the late Mr. Roderick MacLeod. The connection thus happily formed the bard has maintained, continuing in the employment of the firm to this day. During these years he has never ceased to cultivate the gift of song. 'All his productions,' Dr. MacNeill felicitously remarks, 'are characterised by purity of style and idiom, freshness of conception, gentleness of spirit and liquid sweetness of versification.' Of his 'Clàrsach an Doire,' which was first published in 1883, and has now reached its third edition, it is surely much to say that it contains as great variety of good popular songs as any volume of a single author in the language."

'S a' mhaduinn 'n àm dhuinn dùsgadh,
Bhiodh an driùchd air bhàrr an fheòir ;
A' chuthag is gu-gùg aic'
Ann an doire dlùth nan cnò ;
Na laoigh òg' a' leum le sunnd,

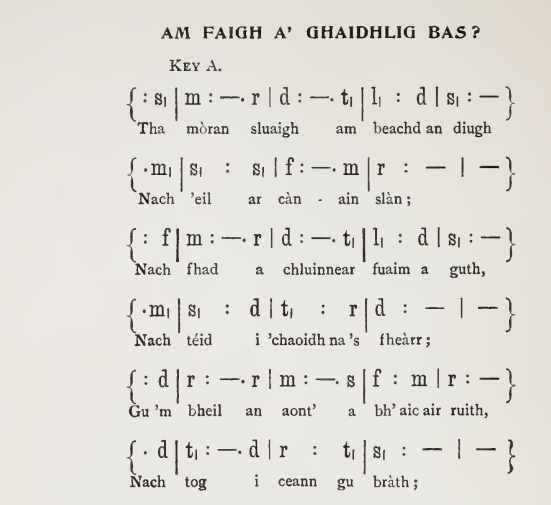
AM FAIGH A' GHAIDHLIG BAS?

KEY A.



Tha mòran sluaigh am beachd an diugh
Nach 'eil ar cànain slàn,
Nach fhad a chluinnear fuaim a guth,
Nach téid i chaoidh na 's fheàrr;
Gu 'm bheil an aont' a bh' aic' air ruith,
Nach tog i ceann gu bràth;
'S a dh' aindeoin buaidh Mhic-'Ille-Dhuibh,
Gu 'm faigh a' Ghàidhlig bàs.

Tha siol nan sonn 'g an cur air chùl,
'S am fearann 'g a chur fàs ;
Tha féidh is caoirich air gach stùc
Mu 'n robh na laoich a' tàmh ;
Tha cinneach eil' air teachd do 'n ùir,
'S ag éirigh suas 'n an àit,
'Tha toirt am bòidean air gach dùil
Gu 'm faigh a' Ghàidhlig bàs.

An leig sinn eachdraidh chaomh ar tìr
A sgrìobadh de gach clàr,
'S a' Ghàidhlig chòir a chur a dhìth
Le linn nach tuig a gnàths?
A' chànain aosda, ghlòrmhor, bhinn,
A dhùisgeadh fuinn nam Bàrd,
Am fan sinn diomhanach gun suim
Is daoi 'g a cur gu bàs?

Dùisg suas, a Ghàidhlig, 's tog do ghuth,
Na biodh ort geilt no sgàig ;
Tha ciadan mile dileas duit
Nach dìobair thu 's a' bhlàr ;
Cho fad' 's a shiubhlas uillt le sruth,
'S a bhuaileas tuinn air tràigh,
Cha 'n aontaich iad an cainnt no 'n cruth
Gu 'n teid do chur gu bàs.

A' chainnt a dh' fhoillsich cliù nam Fiann,
'S an gaisge dian 's gach càs ;
Tha 'n euchdan iomraiteach bho chian
Ag àrach miann 'n an àl ;
Na leómhainn threun nach d' thug le fiamh
An cùlaibh riamh do nàmh,
Tha iomadh gleann, is cnoc, is sliabh,
A' luaidh air gnìomh an làmh.

Cha 'n eòl dhuinn ceàrn an ear no 'n iar,
No fonn mu'n iadh an sàl,
Nach fhaighear cuid an sin dhe 'n sìol
A' liadachadh 's a' fàs,
Tha 'g altrum suas, le dùrachd dhian,
Gach sgialachd agus dàn,
A bhiodh an sinnsearan a' snìomh
Air tìr nan sliabh 's nam bàgh.

Ach 's geàrr a bhios an ùin' a' triall
Gu 'm faic sinn, mar is àill,
A' Ghàidhlig mhùirneach, mar ar miann,
An cathair inbhich, àird ;
A' sgaoileadh eòlais, tuigse, 's ciall
Bho h-ionmhasan nach tràigh ;
'S a' taisbeanadh le neart a rian
Nach teid i 'n cian so bàs.

'N sin togaidh i le buaidh a ceann,
Le aoibhneas ni i gàir ;
A teudan gleusaidh i gu teann
Le cridhe taingeil, làn ;
Gu 'n cluinn Mac-talla feadh nan gleann
Gach doire 's allt cur fàilt',
'S an osag chiùin air bàrr nam beann
A' giùlan fonn a dàin.

Ach buaidh is piseach air na laoich
Tha seasmhach air a sgàth,
Chaidh àrach ann an tìr an fhraoich,
Ge sgaoilt' an diugh an àl ;
Ged chaidh an sgapadh air gach taobh,
Cha chaochail iad an gnàths ;
Cha 'n fhàs an eachdraidh lag le aois
'S cha 'n fhaigh a' Ghàidhlig bàs.

Gu ma slàn do 'n rìghinn òig,
Tha tàmh an eilean gorm an fheòir,
'S e dh' fhàg mo chridhe trom fo leòn
Nach fhaod mi 'n còmhnuidh fuireach leat.

An àm dhuinn dealachadh Di-màirt,
Gun fhios an tachair sinn gu bràth,
Gu'n d' iarr mi gealladh air mo ghràdh,
'S a làmh gu 'm biodh a fuireach rium.

Sheall i orm gu h-iochdmhor, caoin,
'S na deòir a' ruith bho 'sùilean maoth,
Gu'n chuir e saighead geur 'n am thaobh,
An gaol a thug mo chrninneag dhomh.

Tha 'n fhairge 'g éirigh suas 'n a smùid,
Is mise 'n ceangal aig an stiùir ;
Ach chuir e spionnadh ùr 'n am dhùirn
An rùn a thug mo chruinneag dhomh.

Shiùbhlainn deas is shiùbhlainn tuath,
Dh' fhuilinginn acras agus fuachd,
'S cha ghearaininn air smùid a' chuain
Na 'm buannaichinn a' chruinneag ud.

Thug i 'dealbh dhomh air an tràigh,
Is dualan mìn dhe 'cuailean bàn,
Tha sin a' cur 'n am chuimhne ghnàth
An gràdh a thug mo chruinneag dhomh.

'Nuair bhios ise trom 'n a suain,
Bidh mis' air bhàrr nan crannag shuas,
A' pasgadh sheòl, 's a' seinn mo dhuain,
Mu 'n luaidh a thug mo chruinneag dhomh.

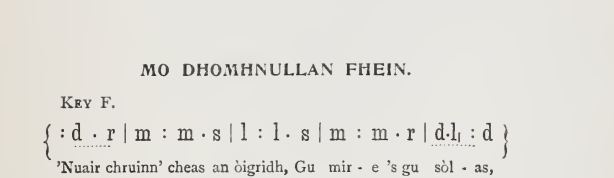
'S tric mi cuimhneachadh le spéis,
'Nuair bha sinn ann an gleann nan geug,
A h-uile gòraiche gun chéill
A rinn mi-fhéin 's mo chruinneag ann.

'S ged tha mi 'n so air bhàrr nan sìon,
A' sabaid ris a' Chuan-an-iar,
Cha bhi mi cuimhneachadh mo dhìol,
'Nuair ni Catrìona furan rium.

Ach thusa, ghaoth, tha dol gu tuath,
Thoir leat mo shoraidh so gu m' luaidh,
Is innis dhi, ma bhios mi buan,
Nach caill i 'duais ri fuireach ruim.

MO DHOMHNULLAN FHEIN.

Key F.



'Nuair chruinn'cheas an òigridh,
Gu mire 's gu sòlas,
Bidh mise 'n am ònar
'S an t-seòmar gun ghleus ;
A' cuimhneachadh còmhraidh
An fhleasgaich a leòn mi,
'S an gaol thug mi òg do
Mo Dhòmhnullan fhéin.

Tha m' athair 's mo mhàthair
Ri gearan 's ri cànran,
'S a' cantainn nach fheàrr mi
Na pàisde gun chéill ;
Mo ghaol thoirt a dh' òigfhear
Tha daonnan a' seòladh,
'S a sgaoileas a stòras
Gun ghò ris gach té.

Ged gheibhinn fear chruachan,
Le pailteas mu 'n cuairt da,
Gun toirt aig an t-sluagh dheth,
Gun suairceas 'n a ghnè ;
Ciod e ni e dhòmhsa
Na chunntadh e dh' òr dhomh,
'S mo chridhe le deòin aig
Mo Dhòmhnullan fhéin?

Tha bliadhn' agus còrr bho
Na thriall e bho 'eòlas,
'S tha 'iomhaigh cho beò dhomh
'S ged sheòladh e 'n dé ;
Cha ghéill mi do dh' òigfhear,
'S cha tréig mi na bòidean,
A sheulaich mi òg do
Mo Dhòmhnullan fhéin.

Tha dualagan bòidheach
Dhe chuailean 'n am phòca,
'S a dhealbh air a chòmhdach
Le òr ann an céis ;
Tha shùilean cho beò ann,
'S a ghruaidh mar na ròsan,
Ag ùrachadh dhòmhsa
Mo Dhòmhnullan fhéin.

'Nuair thachradh an còmhlan
'S a' chlachan Di-dòmhnaich,
'N am measg cha robh òigfhear
Cho còmhnard 'n a cheum ;
Cho beusach 'n a chòmhradh,
Cho fearail 'n a dhòighean,
Bhiodh sùil aig gach òigh air
Mo Dhòmhnullan fhéin.

Gu 'm b' òg bha sinn còmhla
An doire na smeòraich,
'S an dubhar 'g ar còmhdach
Fo spògan nan geug;
A' tional nan neòinean,
Gu h-inntinneach ceòlmhor,
Ri brìodal gun ghò le
Mo Dhòmhnullan fhéin.

'Nuair dh' éireas na cuantan,
A' beucail le buaireas,
Na neòil air an ruagadh,
Is gruaim air an speur;
Bidh mise 'n am ghòraig
Ag éisdeachd an còmhraig,
'S mo chridhe 'g a leòn mu
Mo Dhòmhnullan fhéin.

Am Freasdal bhi stiùireadh
Nan gaothan le ciùine,
'S a' còmhnadh mo rùin anns
Gach dùthaich is ceum;
'G a dhìon is 'g a sheòladh
Gu 'm pill e gu 'eòlas—
Gur mi dheanadh sòlas
Ri m' Dhòmhnullan fhéin.

Ach mur till e gu m' ionnsuidh,
Gur mise bhios tùirseach;
Gu 'n càirear fo 'n ùir mi,
Cha mhùch mi mo spéis;
Cha taobh mi ri òigfhear
'S cha chaochail na bòidean,
No 'n gaol thug mi òg do
Mo Dhòmhnullan fhéin.

Gum a slàn do 'n chaileig
Bh' anns a' bhail' ud shuas,
Thug i dhòmhsa gealladh
Ged nach robh e buan;
'Nuair a dh' fhàg mi 'sealladh
Chuir i car 'n a cluais,
'S ghabh i mach am bealach
Leis a' bhalach ruadh.

Fhuair mi tigh 'us fearann
  Agus beagan guail,
'S rud a dheanadh banais,
  'S thug mi fios do 'n t-sluagh;
Chruinnich iad gu geanail,
  'S dhealaich iad le gruaim,
'S mhallaich iad le caithream
  Ainm a' bhalaich ruaidh.

Their a nis gach bean rium,
  Agus sin le uaill,
"C' àite bheil do leannan,
  Amadain gun bhuaidh?
Na 'm biodh tusa smiorail,
  Fearail mar bu dual,
Chumadh tu do chaileag
  Bho 'n a ghille ruadh."

Ma bhios mise maireann
  Gus an tig Di-luain,
Siùbhlaidh mi gach baile
  'S leanaidh mi an ruaig;
Gus am faigh mi deannal
  Dhe mo chaman cruaidh,
'Fhiachainn air an drannaig
  Aig a' bhalach ruadh.

Bha mi 'n raoir na m' chaithris,
  'S aithreach leam mo dhuais,
'G amharc air gach bealach
  'S mu gach bad 'us bruach;
'S bhòidich mi fodh m' anail
  Ged 'rachadh mo luadh,
Gu 'n tugainn ruith-phrannaidh
  Air a' bhalach ruadh.

Shaoil leam, mar bu mhaith leam
  'Nuair a ghabh mi cuairt,
Gu 'm faca mi 'm balach
  'Falach aig a' chruaich;
Thug mi leum le cabhaig
  Gus a bhi 'n a ghruaig
Ach 's e bhuail mi bannas
  Gearran Choinnich ruaidh.

Ma gheibh mis' an garrach
  Air an taobh so 'n uaigh,
Ni mi 'cheann a sgaradh,
  Ged a b' ann le tuaigh:
Mis' a' cur nan car dhiom
  Ann an leabaidh fhuair,
'S ise 'rinn mo mhealladh
  Aig a' bhalach ruadh!

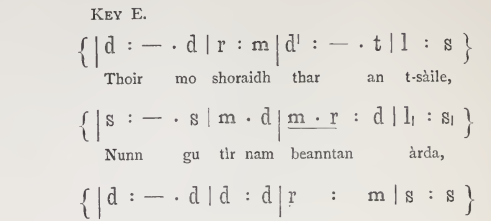
Key E.



Thoir mo shoraidh thar an t-sàile,
Nunn gu tìr nam beanntan àrda,
Far an d' fhuair mi greis dhe m' àrach
Air an àiridh anns na glinn.

Far am biodh an ceòl 's am mànran
Aig an òigridh chridheil, chàirdeil,
Far am biodh na h-òrain Ghàidhlig
'Nuair a bhiodh na h-àrmuinn cruinn.

Far am biodh na h-òighean guanach
'S fhad a chluinnte fuaim an duanaig,
Dol le 'n cuman is le 'm buaraich
Mach gu buailidh a' chruidh laoigh.

Far am biodh na mnathan bàigheil,
Bheireadh biadh is deoch do 'n ànrach,
Agus bodaich chòire làidir
Nach robh fàillinneach no tinn.

Far am bheil na stùcan ceòthach,
Far am bheil am fraoch 's a' mhòinteach,
Far an cluinnte guth na smeòraich.
Agus crònan aig na h-uillt.

Far am faighteadh crodh is daoine,
Tha e nise fàs fo chaoraich,
'S tha na Gàidheil air an sgaoileadh
Air gach taobh air bheagan suim.

Ach tha chuibhle nis air tionndadh,
'S gheibh sinn fhathast còir ar dùthcha,
'S theid na h-uachdarain a sgiùrsadh,
Mur a cum iad cothrom ruinn.

Bidh ar glinn 's ar srathan còmhnard
Air an àiteach 's air an còmhdach,
'S bidh na Gàidheil mar bu chòir dhaibh
Gabhail còmhnuidh anns an tìr.

AN TIR BU MHIANN LEINN.

Cuir oirnn a' chuach mu 'n cuairt le bàigh,
Air sgàth na tìr bu mhiann leinn ;
Air tìr nam beanntan corrach àrd,
Air tìr nan àrmunn fialaidh.

Gur lionmhor laoch a dh' fhàg a tràigh
Nach till gu bràth gu 'chròchan,
A dh' òl a' chuach le cridhe làn,
Air sgàth na tìr bu mhiann leinn.

'S gur lionmhor fàrdach chàirdeil bhlàth
Tha 'n diugh ri làr air crìonadh,
Aig eòin nan speur, 's aig féidh nan àrd,
Le 'n àl 's an tìr bu mhiann leinn.

Ged chaidh ar sgaoileadh feadh gach cearn,
Cha leig sinn bàs no dì-chuimhn',
Air glinn ar gràidh, 's na càirdean blàth
Tha tàmh 's an tìr bu mhiann leinn.

Cho fad 's a bhuaileas tonn air tràigh,
'S a dhearrsas grian 's an iarmailt,
Bidh cliù gu bràth air sìol nan sàr
A dh' fhàg an tìr bu mhiann leinn.

'Nuair thigeadh àm a' chruais 's a' chàis,
Ri uchd nam blàr cha striochd iad ;
An cùl cha d' thug iad riamh ri nàmh,
No tàir do 'n tìr bu mhiann leinn.

Lìon a' chuach dhuinn suas gu 'bàrr,
'S gu 'n tràigh sinn i gu h-ìochdar,
Air tìr nam beanntan corrach àrd,
'S air tìr nan àrmunn fialaidh.

RI TAOBH NA TRÀIGH.

Melody by Iain Mac Calum.

KEY G.—Heartily.

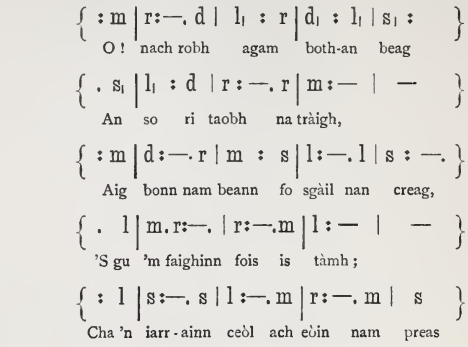
(Melody by kind permission of An Comunn Gaidhealach.)



O! nach robh agam bothan beag
An so ri taobh na tràigh,
Aig bonn nam beann fo sgàil nan creag,
'S gu 'm faighinn fois is tàmh;
Cha 'n iarrainn ceòl ach eòin nam preas
A' beadradh shuas le 'n àl;
Is guth nan tonn is fuaim nan eas
Toirt freagraidh dhaibh le 'n gàir.

'N sin luighinn sìos is dh' éirinn suas
Gu suaimhneach mar a b' àill,
Air m' ùrachadh le caochan cruaidh
An fhuarain fhallain, làin ;
Cha 'n fhaicinn fòirneartan an t-sluaigh
'S gach buaireas agus plàigh,
'S na miltean deòraidh breòite truagh
Fo uallaich throm an sàs.

Tha sàmhchair, neo-chiont, agus sìth
A' còmhnuidh 'n so a ghnàth,
Gun fhoill, gun fharmad, is gun strì
Aig dùil a th' ann a' tàmh.
Tha 'n còmhdach glan, 's an lòn gun dìth,
No nì bho thràth gu tràth ;
Iad beò gun lochd, 's an òran binn
An so ri taobh na tràigh.

Gach feòirnean maoth tha 'n còs no 'n glaic,
Gheibh iad an cuid de 'n driùchd ;
Tha ghrian 'g an àrach suas gun airc
Air àithne Rìgh nan dùl ;
Gach lus no cré is ìsle staid,
Tha iad am beachd a shùl ;
'S an Tì tha freasdal dhaibh air fad,
Cha chuir e mis' air chùl.

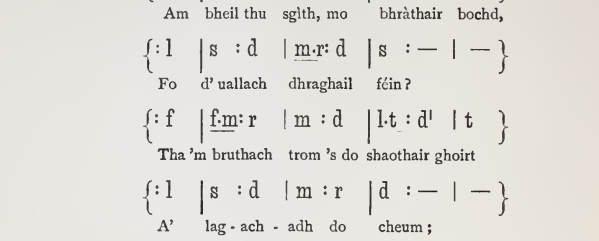
Tha gàir na mara 's gaoth nam beann
Le 'm fuaim cho tiamhaidh, trom,
Cho freag'rach dhòmh-sa aig an àm
'S do 'n ionndrainn tha 'n am chom ;
Cha 'n iarrainn lùchairt mu mo cheann,
Cha 'n iarrainn òr no fonn,
Na 'm faodainn fuireach shìos an gleann,
'G éisdeachd ri guth nan tonn.

Tha cuid an tòir air stòr 's air maoin,
'G an ruith bho 'm breith gu 'm bàs ;
Cha 'n fhaigh iad fois 's cha bhi iad saor,
Ma chi iad sin aig càch ;
Thoir dhòmhsa sìth, is gràdh, is gaol,
Aig taobh nan sruthan tlàth,
Mo bhothan beag fo sgàil nan craobh,
'S mo lios ri taobh na tràigh.

SGÌTH.

Melody by Calum Mac Phàrlain.

Key E Flat.



Am bheil thu sgìth, mo bhràthair bochd,
Fo d' uallach dhraghail féin?
Tha 'm bruthach trom 's do shaothair ghoirt
A' lagachadh do cheum;
Tha 'n dorchadas a' tuiteam ort,
'S a' falach ceum do réis,
Is iomadh garbhlach agus sloc
Mu 'n ruig thu 'n còmhnard réidh.

Mar sheòladair air bhàrr nan stuadh,
'S air iomairt feadh nan tonn;
Na speuran iorghuilleach fo ghruaim,
'S an doinionn air a bonn;
Ach duineil, treun ri àm a' chruais,
Ged tha na cuantan trom,
Tha dòchas beò 'ga chumail suas,
'S le buaidh gu 'n ruig e fonn.

Cha 'n 'eil a h-aon am measg an t-sluaigh
Aig nach 'eil uallach féin.
'S a liuthad mìle deòraidh truagh
Tha 'n sàs fo chuibhreach geur;
Gach inbhe, saibhreas agus uaill,
Gu 'n searg iad as gu léir,
A' dearbhadh nach 'eil sonas buan
Ri shealbhachadh fo 'n ghréin.

Ach cuir do dhòchas anns an Triath,
'S bheir sin duit misneach ùr,
An ceum do dhleasanais a' triall,
'S a reachd dhuit mar reul-iùil;
Gu 'm faod na cathan a bhi dian,
Ach théid iad uil' air chùl;
Thig sìth is fois an déigh nan sìon
'S an déigh nan cath an crùn.

ORAN NA SEANA-MHAIGHDINN.

Ma gheibh mise fear gu bràth,
Plàigh air nach tigeadh e!
Ged nach can mi sin ri càch,
B' fhearr leam gu'n tigeadh e;
'Na mo luighe 'n so leam fhìn,
'S tha e coltach ris gu 'm bi,
Ma tha leannan dhomh 's an tìr,
Sgrìob air nach tigeadh e!

Ged a bhiodh a sporan gann,
Dhannsainn na 'n tigeadh e,
Ged a bhiodh a leth-shùil dall,
M' annsachd na 'n tigeadh e;
Biodh e dubh, no biodh e donn,
Biodh e dìreach, biodh e cam,
Ma tha casan air is ceann,
Dhannsainn na 'n tigeadh e.

'Nuair a bha mi aotrom òg
Phòsadh a fichead mi ;
Chuir mi dhiom iad dhe mo dheòin,
'S spòrs dhaibh a nise mi ;
Theid iad seachad air mo shròin,
Le 'n cuid chruinneagan air dhòrn,
Chaill mi tur orra mo chòir,
'S leònaidh e nise mi.

Tha mo ghruag air fàs cho liath,
'S cianail a nise mi,
Mi 'g a dath an ceann gach mìos,
Pianaidh e nise mi ;
Cha 'n 'eil fiacail 'na mo cheann
Ach a trì tha nunn 's a nall,
Dh' fhalbh mo chruthachd is mo ghreann,
Tha 'n t-àm gu 'n robh mise dheth.

'Nuair a chi mi mnathan truagh,
'S suarach a' mhisneach e,
Pòsd' aig ùmaidhean gun stuaim,
Buaireas is misg aca ;
'B fhearr leam cadal 'na mo bhrat,
'S a bhi mireag ris a' chat,
Na aig burraidh bhi fo smachd,
Seachnadh a' chuid sin mi.

Có ach iadsan ann an gaol?
'S aotrom a chluicheas iad,
'Nuair a gheibh iad pàisdean maoth,
Faoineis gun tuigs' aca ;
Is an cridhe tha 'n an com,
Cho beag faireachadh ri 'm bonn,
Tha e 'n diugh 'g am fhàgail trom
'N tonn a thug sud orm.

Ach ma chuir iad rium an cùl,
Smùr cha chuir sud orm,
Ach ma 's e 's gu 'n tig fear ùr,
Sunnd cuiridh sud orm ;
Biodh e luath, no biodh e mall,
B' fheairrd an tigh so e bhi ann,
Feithidh mi gu 'n tig an t-àm,
'S dhannsainn na 'n tigeadh e !

MADUINN SHAMHRAIDH.

AIR FONN.—"Mòiri bhan òg."

Tha doineann nan speur air séideadh thairis,
Tha nèamh is talamh 'nan glòir;
Tha gathan na gréin' ag éirigh thall ud
Cur sgèimh air beannaibh a' cheò;
Tha eunlaith na coill a' seinn le caithream
Air roinn nam meanganan òg,
Toirt molaidh do 'n Tì thug dhuinn gach beannachd
'S a dhìon troimh 'n ghaillinn iad beò.

Gach doir' agus bruach le 'n tuar cho fallan
'S an gruag air lasadh mar òr;
Fo shileadh an driùchd tha smùid na meala
Cho cùbhraidh bho anail nanròs;
Tha chuthag a' leum feadh gheug a' bharraich
'S an spréidh cho mear aig a' chrò;
'S na cruinneagan suairce, guanach, banail,
Le 'n cuachan bainne 'nan dòrn.

Gach sruthan is allt 'nan deann a' tarruing
Gu ceann na mara le gàir;
Ged bha iad 'sa gheamhradh fann gun anam,
Ri àm na gaillinn an sàs,
Tha nise na neòinein bhòidheach, gheala
Mu 'n còsan tairis a' fàs;
'S an seillean a' stòradh lòin gu thalla,
'S e 'g òl na meala de 'm bàrr.

Nach maiseach na glinn 's gach ni gun ainnis
A' cinntinn thairis mu 'n bhlàr!
Fo dhubhar nan crann tha chlann ag aithris
Air rann nan eal' air an t-snàmh;
Gach coir' agus sliabh cho sgiamhach sealladh
'S a' ghrian 'gam faire le bàigh;
'S gach lus a bha crìonadh shìos fo 'n talamh,
Le 'n ciabhan glan ris a' bhlàths.

Tha fois agus sìth aig tuinn na mara,
Cho mìn a' teannadh gu tràigh;
Cha 'n fhaicear an cìrean miilteach, greannach
'Nan still mu 'n charraig le càir;
Na creagan cho uaibhreach shuas mar challaid—
'S cha ghluais am balla gu bràth—
Bidh meallan de cheò cur sgleò mu 'm bearradh,
'S na h-eòin am falach fo 'n sgàil.

Tha aoidh agus sunnd air gnùis na cruinne
Cho ùr fo dhuilleach 's fo bhlàth ;
Gun airc no gun éis air spréidh no duine,
'S gach réidhlean uile cho làn.
Tha uiseag nan lòn gun bhròn, gun mhulad,
Le h-òran suillein gu h-àrd ;
'S theid mise do 'n choill le loinn nan cruinneag,
A sheinn air luinneig le càch.

AM FEASGAR.

Tha 'ghrian a' sgaoileadh fiamh a glòir,
Mar bhrat de 'n òr air bhàrr nam beann ;
'S an dubhar sèimh a' snàmh mar cheò,
A' còmhdach còmhnaird réidh nan gleann.

Tha fuaim nan allt mar chòisir chiùil,
Le 'n cròman ciùin a' ruith gu tràigh ;
A' sgaoileadh deatach shèimh mar dhriùchd,
Tha 'g ùrachadh nam mìltean blàth,

Tha eòin nan speur le 'n ceileir binn,
A' tional cruinn fo sgàil nan craobh ;
Mar iobairt neo-chiontaich na sìth,
Tha laoidh am beòil gun ghò, gun ghaoid.

Tha neòil an anmoich oirnn mu 'n cuairt,
A' falach uainn an t-soluis àigh ;
Sguiridh a nis ar saothair chruaidh,
Le sùil ri suaimhneas agus tàmh.

Mar sin tha beath' an duine 'triall,
Bho 'n dh' éireas grian air òige bhos ;
Gus an tig 'fheasgar aosmhor liath,
Bho shaothair dhian cha 'n fhaigh e clos.

An neach is fhaid' tha beò de 'n t-sluagh,
Cha 'n 'eil 'na chuairt ach bruadar geàrr,
Seargaidh a bhlàth 's a' gheamhradh fhuar,
'S cha till a shnuadh air ais gu bràth.

O ! Thusa dhealbh an cruinne-cé,
'S ann duit is léir ar cridhe steach,
'S ann duit is aithne crioch ar réis,
Thoir dhuinn gu 'n géill sinn dha do reachd.

Thoir Thusa dhuinn an dòchas beò,
Thoir uainn na sgleòthan faoin nach seas ;

REV. JOHN MACLEOD, D.D.

(OF MORVEN PARISH CHURCH, ARGYLLSHIRE)

1801-1882.

THE Rev. Dr. John MacLeod was the fourth son of the Rev. Norman MacLeod, who was minister of Morven from 1745 to 1824, and was born on the 31st March, 1801. He was educated at Campbeltown and Glasgow University, and was licensed by the Presbytery of Mull on the 5th of November, 1823, and succeeded his father as minister of Morven in September, 1824. He received the degree of D.D. from his Alma Mater in 1845, and in the same year he visited Canada as a Church deputy, another of the delegates being his distinguished nephew, the Rev. Dr Norman MacLeod, of the Barony Church, Glasgow.

In 1851 he was Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, and was appointed Dean of the Chapel Royal and Chaplain of the Order of the Thistle.

Distinguished for strong native talent and varied gifts and attainments, he was always well-known, especially in the West Highlands. An exceedingly powerful Gaelic preacher, he was also eminent as a contributor to Gaelic literature. His prose was recognised as equal to the best in the language; and he composed some excellent Gaelic poetry. His "Oran an Iasgair" has long been a favourite in the West Highlands. It was translated into English* by Professor Blackie, who wrote:—"It may be as well here to complete the picture of sea life in these parts by giving a specimen of a genuine boat song. The author of the following piece is the Rev. John MacLeod, of Morven, on the Sound of Mull, and uncle to Norman, the late lamented minister of the Barony Parish, Glasgow. Through all that clerical family, indeed, a rich vein of robust, vital poetry can be traced—a vein of more value sometimes than a hundred sermons."

The MacLeods of Morven have always been men of powerful physique and commanding presence, but for these characteristics Dr John MacLeod was notable among them all. He was six feet seven inches in height, with a powerful athletic frame.

He married, in 1834, Margaret, daughter of Donald Maclean of Boreray and Drimnin, a grand-daughter of the famous Donald MacLeod of Bernera, who refused to follow his chief against Prince Charlie, with issue:—Rev. Norman MacLeod, D.D., of Edinburgh, who was for a time minister of St. Columba Church, Glasgow, and afterwards at Blair Atholl, St Stephen's Parish Church, Edinburgh, and the High Church, Inverness; the Rev. John MacLeod, D.D., minister of Govan, Glasgow, who was born at Fiunary in 1840, and died at Govan, 1898; and two daughters, who died young.

Many calls from parishes of greater preferment were refused by John MacLeod. He elected to remain among his own people, and amid the scenes of his youth in woody Morven, and he died there in 1882. His death closed a combined ministry of father and son in that one parish, which extended over the extraordinary period of 105 years.

He was the father of Dr Norman Inverness, whom I remembered. We were travelling together from Glasgow, and we had similar umbrellas only mine was new & his was old so when he stepped out of the train he took my umbrella & on discovering I ran after him & told him I had his umbrella & he put the question right with a smile s= Dr John of Govan = he was a different type of man from "Cavend Norm Scotland" family – The Campsie family were bulkier & stronger men in every way.

DUGALD MACPHAIL.

"MUILEACH."

1819-1887.

THE Island of Mull has been the theme of many lyrics, but that known as "An t-eilean Muileach," by the late Dugald MacPhail, still holds the leading place, not only among natives, but with all lovers of Gaelic song. The author was born at Strathcaoil, at the foot of Beinn-bhairneach, in the parish of Torosay, Mull, in 1819. His ancestors had been farmers at Rohill, in beautiful Glenforsa, from time immemorial. He was a contractor by trade, and having devoted some time to the study of architecture, for which he had a strong natural bent, he raised himself to a superior position in that profession. He migrated to Glasgow with his young wife—a rare helpmeet in every respect—and thence he went to Newcastle. It was while resident in that city that he composed "An t-eilean Muileach," the song by which he is best known. His success in securing the important appointment of architect and clerk of works to the Duke of Westminster, necessitated his removal to Shaftesbury, Dorsetshire, where several of his family were born. From Shaftesbury he went to Edinburgh, being attracted thereto chiefly because of that city's educational advantages to his family. While resident here he received from a friend in Mull a bunch of primroses—roots and all—which he planted in his garden with much affection; and this incident led to the composition of that excellent song, "An t-sòbhrach Mhuileach" (The Mull Primrose). In 1859 he gained a prize given by the Edinburgh Celtic Society for an original essay on the "Highland Clearances." He was an ardent lover of his Church as well as of his country, and one of his earliest literary performances was a selection in Gaelic of the most striking chapters in the history of the Church from the Reformation down to the Disruption of 1843. This work was amply illustrated, and was so well taken up that it is long since out of print. He also contributed, over his pen-name of "Muileach," a number of articles to "An Gaidheal," including a serial called "Callum a' Ghlinne," in that classic Gaelic of which he was a ready master. It is as a song writer, however, that the name of Dugald MacPhail will live in the hearts of his Highland countrymen. His "Eilean Muileach," as sweet a lyric as any in the language, gives expression not only to what every exiled native of Mull feels in moments of home-sickness and sad longings for "Muile nam mor bheann," but gives expression to the deep feelings which move every Highlander's heart as he thinks of and yearns for his loved northern home. While "An t-eilean Muileach" portrays so touchingly the patriotism of his heart, his song to "Dòmhnull Beag," his eldest son, shows no less clearly his strong affection as a father and a husband. In the poetry of love, in which Gaelic is so rich, no less than in that of patriotism and the domestic affection, Mr. MacPhail's muse was richly productive. His popular song, "An cluinn thu leannain, an cluinn thu?" besides many other of his productions is full of the sweet tenderness and melancholy longings of the ardent lover and the true poet. The military spirit of the race finds expression in the "Battle of Alma." Mr. MacPhail's productions have never been published in a collected form, but the best of them are given in the following pages, and also will be found in a collection of Gaelic songs by the late Archibald Sinclair, Glasgow, and called "An t-Oranaiche." Mr. MacPhail was an ardent Free Churchman, and while too wide in his Christian sympathies not to long for a union of the Presbyterian bodies in Scotland, which had much in common, yet he felt called upon to oppose the proposed union of the Free and U.P. sections on the grounds that the Highlanders were not ready to unite with a body they had been long taught to regard with suspicion, if not distrust. Recent events have proved the soundness of Mr. MacPhail's reasoning.

DUGALD MACPHAIL.

Mr. MacPhail passed away at his residence at Partick on 1st November, 1887, leaving a widow and a family of five sons and three daughters. He was buried, by his express wish, at Old Monkland, where the first-born of his first-born had been laid. The talent which was so remarkably displayed by the father, and which enabled him so successfully to fight life's battle, has descended very conspicuously to his family. Three of his sons are medical practitioners, one of them being a Professor of Anatomy, one a Presbyterian minister in England, and one combining both professions as a medical missionary in India. Of his three daughters, two are teachers.

Mrs. MacPhail was a native of Auchenleck, Ayrshire, but was brought up in Mull, where her father, Mr. Merry, had a large farm. This fact explains the lines in the song to "Dòmhnull Beag," the bard's eldest son—

> "Is coltach ri Cloinn Phàil nan Gleann thu, > Ged bu Ghall bu sheanair dhuit."

JOHN CAMPBELL.

"The Bard of Ledaig."

JOHN CAMPBELL.

THE BARD OF LEDAIG.

1823-1897.

JOHN Campbell was the son of Colin Campbell, of "Tighean Fhearchair," a part of old Oban now demolished. He was born there on the 22nd day of September, 1823. When a mere child, his parents removed to Ledaig in Benderloch, his father having been appointed parish schoolmaster, which post he held for thirty-five years.

John Campbell was educated with the view of entering the ministry of the Church, but he had to give up his studies owing to ill health. He spent some time in Glasgow in the service of commercial firms, but the confinement of his employment, and the atmosphere of the large city, did not agree with him, and he was obliged to return to his native parish. Deciding to make Ledaig his home, he opened a store there. This venture did not prosper, and so he took to gardening, sending his fruit and vegetables to the Oban market. Later on he was appointed Postmaster for the district.

The bard's mind was always of a serious bent, but he had the "saving grace" of humour in a marked degree. Love of the Highlands and his mother tongue was part of his being. A devout Christian, he ministered to the spiritual needs of young and old. There was a grotto in the cliffs which bounded his little patch of ground, and this natural cave he fitted up as a meeting house, where he conducted a Sabbath School and other religious services. The worshippers sat on trunks of trees, and the lay preacher's table and reading desk was the stump of a tree, associated in local tradition with Robert the Bruce's visit to the district on the occasion of his Parliament in Ardchattan Priory in 1308. The grotto, which was visited by many distinguished people during the poet's lifetime, was broken up in 1903, greatly to the regret of all the people in the district, to make way for the line of the new railway to Ballachulish.

The bard was much beloved by all who came in contact with him, and among his closest friends was the genial Professor Blackie. He left a widow and a family of five daughters. A few years before his death, he was presented by his many admirers with a purse of sovereigns, and the comfort of his old age is pourtrayed by the pretty villa where he died, and where Mrs. Campbell and two daughters still reside. This villa, which is situated near Ledaig station, by its singular beauty and the neatness of its garden, attracts the notice of every traveller.

In 1884 a volume of John Campbell's Gaelic poems was published, and a few of them are accompanied with English translations by Professor Blackie.

The Bard passed away in May, 1897, and was buried in Achnaba Churchyard, where his numerous friends erected a fitting memorial, bearing the words:—"A sweet singer, an ardent lover of nature, an earnest Christian teacher, a most lovable man."

Air struthain chaisleach nan caran lùbach,
Ri mire 's gleadhraich feadh bhac 'us stùcan ;
No 'ruith gu sàmhach 'sa' ghleannan chiùin ud,
'S an doire challtuinn gu teann 'g an dùnadh.

An eidheann dhualach mar sgàil-bhrat uaine,
'S a' gheamhradh 's fuaire fo shnuadh a' fàs,
'S i' dìon le 'sgiathan nan àrd-chreag liath ud,
Mar gu 'm b'e h-iarrtas an cumail blàth.

An tonn ri crònan air cladach còmhnard,
Le morbhan bòidheach 'toirt ceòl gu réidh ;
No 'g éirigh suas dhuinn le toirm an uamhais,
'S an cath 'na chuartaig 'ga sguab' do'n speur.

Sud tìr a' chàirdeis 's an d' fhuair mi m' àrach,
'S a bheil a' Ghàidhlig is àillidh fonn,
'S i thogadh m' inntinn 'nuair bhithinn tùrsach,
'S a dh' fhàgadh sunndach mo chridhe trom.

Is tric a thionndaidh mi air mo chùlaibh,
'Nuair chluinninn dlùth i air sràid nan Gall ;
Mo chridhe dh' eireadh mar aiteal gréine,
'Thoirt sùil am dhéigh a dh' fheuch cò bhiodh ann.

Is ged a shealladh na Goill a sìos oirnn,
'Nuair bhiodhmaid dìreach a thìr nam beann ;
Fuidh 'n chairt is suaraiche 's tric a fhuaras
Am fiodh is luachmhoir' am measg nan crann.

'S i sud an dùthaich a thog na fiùrain
Bha gaisgeil, cliùiteach, bha iùlmhor, treun,
A sheasadh laidir a dhìon gach càs leinn,
'S gu bràth nach d' fhàilnich an là an fheum.

Tha 'n gaisgeach ainmeil, is tric a dhearbht' e,
Air tìr 's air fairge, an cath 's an strìth ;
B' iad luchd an fhéilidh gu bràth nach géilleadh,
Fhad 's ruitheadh deur de fhuil réidh n' an crìdh'.

'S i 'n fhìor fhuil uasal o thìr nam fuar-bheann,
A bhiodh 's a' ghruagaich d' an tugainn spéis ;
Tè bhruidhneadh blàth rium 's a' chànain àluinn
Bu ro mhath thàthadh ar gràdh r' a cheil'.

'S a choidhch cha chaochail an tlus tha 'm thaobh-sa
Do m' thìr, 's do m' dhaoine, a b' aobhach leam ;
'S cha leig air diochuimhn' gach comhairl' phrìseil,
Thug teachdair dìleas na firinn dhuinn.

'Us ged a ruiginn-sa cùl nan Innsean,
'S gach eilean rìomhach 's na tìrean thall;
Is ann am dhùthaich a ghuidhinn m' ùir bhi,
'Nuair bhiodh mo shùilean 'gan dùnadh teann.

'S mo chead 's an uair so do thìr nam buadh ud,
'S mo bheannachd buan leis an t-sluagh tha ànn;
'S an cliù a fhuair sinn o linn ar sinnsir,
Gu ceann ar criche nach dealaich ruinn.

TAOBH MO THEINE FÉIN.

'S e taobh mo theine dhòmhsa chlann,
'S e taobh mo theine féin;
Gu 'm b' e sud àite blàth mo ghaoil,
Aig taobh mo theine féin.

'Nuair thig mi dhachaidh anns an oidhch',
'S mi fann, is fliuch, is sgìth;
An saoghal cosmhail ri bhi 'n gruaim,
Cho duaichnidh bidh gach nì,
'S a chì mi 'n solus tigh'nn gu m' shùil,
Troimh 'n uinneig dhùint', mar reul,
Gu 'n tog mo chridhe suas le sunnd,
Bhi dlùth do 'm theine féin.

'S 'nuair chì mi 'n lasair dheàrrsach, dhearg,
'S gach àite sguabte grinn,
Is flamh a' ghàir 's gach aghaidh ghràidh,
'S gach aon toirt fàilte bhinn;
O c' àit' bheil sonas cosmhail ris
An saoghal bochd a' bhroin?
Cha tugainn taobh mo theine féin
Air mile bonn de 'n òr.

'Nuair gheibh mi comunn caomh mo rùin,
'S iad dlùth dhomh air gach laimh,
Gach aon 'toirt bàrr an tlus 's am bàigh,
'S bann gràidh 'g ar ceangal teann,
Mo bhean 's i cur gach nì 'na àit,
'S mo phàisdean air mo ghlùn,—
Cha suaipinn taobh mo theine féin
Air sonas rìgh 'na chùirt.

AN GAOL.

Melody by Iain Mac Calum.

Is iongantach da rìreadh an ni sin an gaol;
'S iomadh duine truagh chaidh a ruag leis 'san t-saoghal;
Gheibh thu e cho àrd ris a bhan-righ fo'n chrùn;
Gheibh thu e cho losal ris an lochdran is ùmh'l.

An duine tha cho borb 's gu'n cuir fhearg daoine dhìth,
'S gu'n saoil thu nach 'eil aiteal de'n ghràdh ud na chrìdh',
Bithidh té 'n àite-éigin do 'm feum e bhi strìochd,
'S a bheir gach taobh is àill' è gun chàs is gun strìth.

Is iongantach da rìreadh an ni sin an gaol;
Is iomadh mùthadh beachd a tha measg chloinn nan daoin';
An tè nach gabhainn féin ged bhiodh ceudan 'na stòr,
Bidh fear eile air a déigh, 's as a h-eughmhais cha bheò.

Far nach d' thugainnse mo chùl airson crùn 's an Roinn-Eòrp,
Is nach faic mi té am mìle thig a nìos ri 'na dòigh,
Bithidh gach coire oirr' aig pàirt, ach gu bràth is tu beò,
Ma bhios t-inntinn féin leat na mùth-sa do sheòl.

Tha nigheanan cho àillidh 's a thaghadh tu roimh cheud,
A thug gaol nach dìobair do fhear nach robh d' an réir;
Ach ma bha 'n cridhe còmhla 's an inntinn le chéil,
'S e sud a d' fhàg iad toilichte 'nuair thàinig latha 'n fheum.

'S a nis ma tà o'n 's iongantach an galar sin an gaol,
Bi cinnteach as do chridhe féin mu'n cuir thu 'n t-snaim nach sgaoil;
'S ma bhios tu bochd no beartach, no ciamar thig an saoghal,

Fhreagair ise.
"O cha 'n fheud mi fuireach agad,
'S allaban fo m' chois is ruaig;
Cha luaithe tha mi ann am baile
Na tha mi le cabhaig uaith."

An tìm a b' fhaid' a fhuair mi dh' anail
B' ann aig cailleach Eachainn Ruaidh;
Shnaim i mi am mogan stocaidh
'N seotal ciste glaiste cruaidh.

Luigh mi 'n sin fad iomadh latha,
'N toit 'gam dhalladh, 'call mo shnuaidh;
'S bhòidicheadh a' chailleach charrach

Ach air dhi bhi mach air chéilidh
Thàinig reubanach mu 'n cuairt;
Tholl an anainn; bhris na glasan;
'S fhuair mi cead na coise uaip'!

Ach ma fhuair cha b' fhada 'mheal mi,
Chaidh an tòir 'nar déigh gu luath;
Thug iad mi á sàil na bróige,
'S crois is céir chaidh air mo ghruaidh.

Sheas mi air là mòr na cùirte,
'S thug mi fianuis 'measg an t-sluaigh;
Fhuair a' chailleach air a h-ais mi,
'S fhuair am bàs i féin gu luath.

'S ged bu chruinn a sgrìob i còmhla
Am bonn òir, 's an sgillinn ruadh,
O bu bhraise 'chaidh a sgaoileadh
Na ni gaoth am moll a ruag'.

Leum na càirdean air a chéile
Mu 'n robh 'n creutair fuar 'san uaigh;
Bha 'n luchd-lagha 'n an cuid féin deth,
Is gach aon ri streupaid chruaidh.

Och, mo léireadh na'm bu ni e
'Bhiodh r 'a innseadh anns an t-saoghal,
A' chailleach fhaotainn comas éirigh
Dh' fhaicinn 'n diol 'bha air a saothair.

O 's ann aice 'bhiodh an caoidhrean,
An och, och 's an guileag truagh;
Càch a' faotainn math a cuibhrinn
Is i féin dol bàs le cruas.

A bhuaileas e a sìos.

Cha 'n fhaic mi post, cha 'n fhaic mi post,
Nach e so smuain mo chridh':
O 's iomadh àit an toir thu lot
'S an toir thu slàint is sìth.
Is e mo ghuidhe anns gach tràth,
Do 'n Tì gu bràth nach tréig
Gu 'n toir e fuasgladh anns gach càs,
'S gach àit a chi e feum.

DONALD MACKECHNIE.

THE JURA BARD.

Born 1836.

DONALD Mackechnie is numbered among those who, by persevering application and energy, have surmounted great obstacles and attained to positions of usefulness and influence in their own walk of life. He was born in 1836, in the Island of Jura, Argyllshire, but removed to Glasgow in early life, where, in due time, he entered upon a commercial career. Some idea of one of the many disadvantages under which the greater part of the Highlands then lay, may be gathered from the fact that Mr. Mackechnie left his native island to fight the battle of life with but very little education and no English to speak of. A desire for self-culture, however, was strong within him. He attended evening classes; progress was at first slow, but perseveringly he toiled upwards, the result being that he reached the highest rung of the commercial ladder. He has been a citizen of "Auld Reekie" for the last 40 years, acting first as agent in Edinburgh and district for a large firm of distillers and commission agents, and subsequently in business for himself. He has now retired from active life, and devotes much of his time to literary pursuits.

A collection of Mr. Mackechnie's Gaelic poems, songs, translations, and humorous sketches, entitled "Am Fear Ciùil" was published in 1904. While he makes attractive the road rendered smooth by the tramping of many feet, he also leads us into a pleasant by-path which points the way to heights not yet attempted in Gaelic song. A striking feature of his poetry is its thoughtfulness. Greater care is taken with the versification, fewer meaningless phrases are made use of, and more of the inwardness of things is presented than was customary with the old school of Gaelic poets.

The prose pieces are permeated with an unconstrained humour, racy of the soil, giving results which are simply delightful. They are always interesting and lively, and possess a piquancy unique in modern Gaelic literature.

A shruthain, air t' athais;
Nach dean thu rium maille?

Bu truime gu sàil';
Air caochladh cho buileach,
An aogasg 's an cruitheachd,
Bha 'n caochan a chunnaic
Mi 'sruthadh troimh 'n chàr.

A shruthain, a shruthain,
Mo bheannachd a' d' chuideachd,
Cha 'n fhada ceann-uidhe
  Nan uile bho d' chàs;
Tha fuaim a' chuain bhith-bhuain
A' d' chluasan a' ainneadh,
Gur suarach an t-slighe,
  'S i 'n giorrad a' fàs.

Tha feasgar an latha
A' tarruing am fagus,
An cala 'san t-sealladh
  'S an gabh thu gu tàmh;
Ach faicear thu fhathast
Air sgiathan na maidne,
Gun smùr no gun smal ort,
  Mar chanach a' chàir.

NA SEANN ÒRAIN.

KEY D.—Moderato.

O, seinn a rìs iad, mo chailin dìleas,
'S iad thogadh m' inntinn os cionn gach dòruinn ;
Tha 'n cridhe fuaraidh nach deanadh gluasad
Ri éisdeachd dhuanag air fuaim cho ceòlar.

Cho binn 's a dh' éireas am bàrr na géige,
Air mhadainn chéitein á beul na smeòraich ;
Air fuinn a dh' fhàsas 's na glinn gu nàdurr',
'S nach tig gu blàth, ach an sgàth nam mòr-bheann.

Tha greis o'n dh' fhàg mi an gleannan fàsail,
'S an d' fhuaìr mi m' àrach an làithean m' òige ;
'S an cual mi 'chànain tha 'm chluais gun fhàgail,
Am fuaim nan dàn air an robh mi eòlach.

O, creid gur firinn a tha mi 'g innseadh,
Is ionmhas prìseil do thìr a h-òrain ;
Cha dìleab shuarach o'n bhàrd a dhuanag,
Ged 's beag, mo thruaighe ! 'chuir i 'na phòca.

O, ceòl ar dùthcha, is spiorad iùil e
A tha 'g ar stiùradh air cùrsa mòrachd,
An cumail ùrail nam beusan fiùghail,
A choisinn cliù dhuinn an cùis na còrach.

'Na fhann-ghuth gràsmhor, biodh ceòl nan àrd-bheann
Am chluais 'san là 'bhios gun mhàireach dhòmhsa ;
'S mo bheannachd dh' fhàgainn, an cainnt mo mhàthar,
Do 'n tìr 'rinn m' àrach an làithean m' òige.

AN RIBHINN ÒG D' AN D' THUG MI GRADH.

An rìbhinn òg d' an d' thug mi gràdh,
A nis air fàs dhiom suarach;
'S e sin a tha, an diugh, 'gam chràdh,
'S a d' fhàg cho bàn mo ghruaidhean:
Ged thug thu rium do chùl an dràsd,
'S a dh' fhàg thu mi fo smuairean,
Tha t' iomhaigh ghaoil ri m' thaobh a ghnàth,
'S do chòmhradh tlàth 'am chluasan.

'Nuair bha sinn òg, gun fheall, gun ghò,
'S sinn còmhla feadh nan cluanag,
Ag éisdeachd eòin na coill' ri ceòl,
'S an t-allt ri crònan suaineach:
Mar oiteag chéit am measg nan geug,
Gun fhios daibh féin 'gan luasgadh,
Thug sinne spéis do chàch a chéil',
Gun fhios duinn fein 's gun luaidh air.

Tha 'n t-allt mar bha, a' ruith gu tràigh,
'S na flùir a' fàs m'a bhruachan,
Is eòin na speur am bàrr nan geug,
A' seinn gu h-eutrom guanach;

No 'n robh i ruith le 'casa beaga,

Gun ghùn, gun chleòc, gun bhréid, gun bhròig,
Ach ann a còtan ruadh.

Cuailein bòidheach 's fiamh an òir dheth,

AM BÀRD.

Chunnaic mi 'm bàrd air tràigh na mara,
  Is ràn na gaillinn 'na chluais,
'Coimhead gu geur nan steud-each geala
  Bha leum ri cladach a suas,
Le stàirn cho cruaidh 's gu 'n d' ghluais mactalla
  Le fuaths' a dh' aithris na fuaim,
Is toirm nan speur ag eirigh thairis,
  'Cur séisd ri farum nan stuadh.

Torman nan dùl, air chùl na gaillinn,
  A' dusgadh aigne á 'n suain;
Inntinn air ghleus is éud air anam,
  Thoirt beul do earrann d' a smuain;
Ach cainnt g'an luaidh cha d' fhuaradh fathast,
  No bàrd g'an aithris 'an duan;
Cha d' thig o'n bheul ach sgeul na h-amaid,
  A dh' fheuchas caithream a chuain.

Chunnaic mi 'm bard air àiridh ghleannain,
  Is nàdur fathast 'na shuain;
Le ciùine thlàth a snàmh mu thalamh,
  Is sàmhchair cadail air chuan;
Mu 'n d' thog na flùir an sùil ri latha,
  Is drùchd 'gan camadh a nuas;
'Lùbadh an glùin 'an ùmhlachd mhaidinn,
  'S mar thùis an anail dol suas.

Dh' éirich, air ball, air crann 's a choille,
  Ard bhinn-ghuth loinneil an lòin;
'S fhreagair le fonn gach tom is doire,
  'Nuair dhùisg le coirioll na h-eòin,
Thoirt fàilt' do 'n ghrein, bha ceudan feadan,
  'An coisir leadarr' air seòl;
'S uiseag bheag chiar air sgiath na maidne,
  'Cur trian de 'n athar 'na cheòl.

Oiteag a' Chéit feadh gheug is dhuille,
  'Cur séisd ri luinneag an eòin,
Clàrsach na coill 'an laoidh na cruinne,
  Gun suim co thuigeas a glòir.
Aingeal a' chiùil air cùl nan sumair,
  'S cliath-lùth na cruitheachd f'a mheòir,
Deachdadh gu réidh air stéidh nan uile,
  Gach gleus 's an cuirear an ceòl.

Cum-sa bho'n airc an làmh neo-airidh,
Tha làithreachd tharainn 's gach uair,
A dhiùlt do 'n bhàrd a chàil a chanas
Na b'àill leis aithris na dhuain,
Ach sin mar tha, mar bha, 's mar bhitheas,
Tha cainnt a' chrìdhe gun luaidh ;
'S binne a' phàirt nach d' fhàg na bilean,
Na 'n dàn a's grinne thig uath.

Tha 'm bàrd leis fein air féill 's air faidhir,
Gun spéis do mhalairt an t-sluaigh ;
Anam cha shleuchd air beulaobh Mhamoin,
Cha ghéill e ealain air luach,
Tha cheum leis fein air beinn Pharnassus,
'An teampull farsuinn na smuain ;—
Teampull nan Dé,—gun bheum a' chlachair,—
A dh' éirich snasmhor is buan.

Buinibh gu réidh ris 's éisdibh tamull
R'a sgeul is canaibh a dhuain ;
Seallaibh le spéis air fein 's air ealain,
Is seudan barraicht' a smuain ;
Tréigidh sibh fein 'ur féill 's 'ur malairt,
Is theid sibh thairis g' ur duais,
Cian mu'n leigear gu beud aon earrann,
Do 'n t-seisd a chan e 'nur cluais.

'Nuair bha sibh shìos an tìr 'ur n-aineoil,
Bu phrìseil rannan a' bhàird,
A bha d'ur crìdh' mar ìocshlaint cheanalt',
D' an strìochd an gearan a's àird' ;
Orain 'ur dùthch', mar dhrùchd nam flaitheas,
Ag ùrach anann nan sàr ;
'Toirt tìr 'ur rùin, as ùr, 'nur sealladh,
Gach stùc, is bealach, is càrn.

Buinibh gu réidh ris 's éisdibh tamull
R'a sgeul ged chan e ach pàirt ;
'S ged tha fo 'n ghrein nach leir dha aithris,
'S nach géill do 'n ealain a's àird ;
'S e buaidh a chiùil an tùs a mhosgail,
A chliù a choisinn na sàir ;
C' àit an robh Fionn, is Goll, is Oscar,
As eugmhais Oisean am bàrd?

GUTH A' CHUAIN.

Fanaibhs', a chlann, air a' chòmhnard,
A' buain neòinean feadh nan tom ;
No ma's fearr a' chulaidh chleas e,
Ruithibh greis 'am beul nan tonn.

Diridh mise 'n àird am bruthach,
Far am faic mi thugam 's uam,
'S bho 'n a tha mi gann de chuideachd,
Eisdidh mi ri guath a' chuain.

Tha 'n cuan dhòmhsa mar fhear-eòlais,
Tigh'nn 'am chòmhail air an tràigh,
Fiamh a ghàir' air aodann preasach,
'S a thuinn bheaga 'cur orm fàilt'.

'S tric 's na làithean a chaidh seachad,
'Bheachdaich mi air cruth nan stuadh,
'Tigh'nn chum teachdaireachd na mara
'Liobhairt air a' chladach chruaidh.

A bhi beachdachadh orr' daonnan,
Le 'n ceòl caochlaideach 'am chluas ;
Dh' fhàg air m' inntinn samhladh morachd,
Nach dean briathra beòil a luaidh.

'S ged bha 'n teachdaireachd do-leughadh,
Gheuraich i, ar leam, mo smuain,
Gu bhi rannsachadh na duibhre
Tha 'gar cuibhreachadh mu 'n cuairt.

Tha mar chùirteinibh na pàillinn,
'Cùirneachadh na h-àirc mu'n cuairt,
'S am meall neòil a tha 'ga còmhdach,
Mar chirb glòire rìgh nan sluagh.

Ann an teampull mor na cruinne,
Tha ar cuid againn 's a' chùirt,
'S roinn-bhrat tribilt air ar n-inntinn
A' cleith dìomhaireachd na cùis'.

Ciod, ma tà, is ciall do 'n t-sealladh
Chaidh a cheadachadh do 'n t-sùil ;
Neamh is talamh mar fhaoin fhaileas,
Air nach d' fhuair sinn fathast iùil.

Na speuran sgaoilt' os cionn ar cinn ;
An talamh fillte fo ar ceum ;
Is freumh ar nàduir toinnte dlùth,
Mu gach dùil 's a' chruinne ché.

'S gach ni ghluaiseas sùil no cluas,
A' dùsgadh annainn smuain d'a réir ;
Còrda fìnealta ar nàduir,
'Cumail càil a ghnàth air ghleus.

A' mhaoth-ghaoth chéit am measg nan geug,
A' luasgadh teuda gléist' 'nan crann,
Air sgiathaibh mìn' a' giùlan sìos,
Laoidhean binn nan iomadh rann.

Bho chiùin mhorbhan braoin air duille,
Gu àrd ghuth na gaillinn ghairg ;
'Chreag a' freagairt fuaim na tuinne,
'S gun aon ni 's a' chruinne balbh.

Aom do chluas is éisd an luathghair
Tha 'dol suas o mhuir 's o thìr,
'S ged nach tuig smuain na chluinneas cluas,
Creid nach 'eil an fhuaim gun bhrìgh.

Ciod ma tha gach bith 's an domhan,
A' toirt molaidh réir a ghnè?
Haleluia ! ioma-ghuthach,
Do 'n Tì chruathaich talamh 's neamh.

Cuir do bhròg an bhàrr do chasan,
So, da-rìreadh, tulaich Dhé !
A naomh-reachd sgrìobht' air clàr gach cloich
Is anns gach preas a làithreachd fein.

* * * * * * *

Tha mi cluinntinn guth na cloinne,
'Glaodhaich, "Athair, thig a nuas : "
Glaodh cho sean ri tùs na cruinne ;
"Tha mi tighinn ;" "Thig mi luath."

SEACHARAN SEILG.

Chaith mi 'n latha 'n déigh na faghaid,
Air feadh bheann is ghleann is dhoire,
Gus an d' chaill mi anns a' choille,

'S o'n bha 'n oidhche air tigh'nn frasach,
Sheall mi air son àite fasgaich,
Far am faighinn leaba 'nasgaidh,
  Am measg chàrna glasa 'n t-sléibh.

Fhuair mi sud aig bun a' bhruthaich,
Bothan-àiridh air dhroch thughadh,
Toll 'na mhullach air son luidheir,
  Sgroth 'san uinneig, taobh na gaoith;
Sgathach bheithe air son còmhlaidh,
Nach ceileadh a' bheag de 'n dòlas,
'S a' chur eagail air na bòcain,
  Rinn mi dòigh air teine fhraoich.

Bha isean feannaig ann am phòca,
Air nach d' amais moran clòimhtich,
Chuir mi car dheth anns a' bheòlaich,
  'S bha e ròist' agam gu m' riar:
Choisrig mi an creutair neò-ghlan,
Le deur beag de shûgh an eòrna,
'S ged nach robh a' chuirm ro-shòghmhor,
  'S mairg bhiodh tòrmasach mu'n bhiadh.

Mar is gnàth leam an déigh féisde,
Rinn mi phìob thombaca 'ghleusadh,
Thug mi 'n taod á ceann mo reusain,
  'S leig mi fad na sréin le 'm smuain
Ghabhail iolla ris na dealbhan,
A bha 'g éirigh suas 'sa ghealbhan,
Samhladh faoin air nithe talmhaidh,
  Faileis anfhann anns an luath.

Anns a' cheò bha snàmh mu 'n cuairt orm,
Cruthan caochlaideach a' gluasad,
A' cur m' inntinn ann am buaireas,
  Nach 'eil soirbh a luaidh 'an cainnt:
Cha robh buidseachd a' cur sgleò orm,
'S cha robh geilt orm roimh bhòcain,
Ach bha cruth air bràigh na còmhladh,
  A chuir m' fheòil air chrith 's gach reang.

Dà shùil lasrach 'an clar aodainn,
Nach robh choimeas farasd fhaotainn,
Sròn cho fada ris an taobhan,
'S paidhir adhaircean air a cheann:
Dh' éirich mi gu grad air m' uilinn,
'S thug mi ionnsaidh air a' ghunna,
Ach cha d' thug e suim no umhail,
Mar gu 'm b' iomhaigh umha bh' ann.

Spìon mi bhoineid bhàrr mo bhathais,
Dh' aithris mi mo chreud 's mo phaidir,
Ghearr e leum is rinn e sraitheadh,
Mar fhuaim canain ann am chluais:
Cheart cho fìor 's tha sròn air m' aodann,
Chuala mi gu soilleir gleadhraich,
Mar gu 'm bithead tu a' slaodadh,
Slabhraidh chaol thar chlachan cruaidh.

Rìgh gabh agam! Sin e rithist!
Thog mi 'n gunna 's leig mi ris i,
Dh' éirich e mar eun air ite,
'S teine drìlsneach as a dhéigh:
Le stoth pronnaisg 's toit an fhùdair,
Thuit mi seachad air an ùrlar,
'S 'nuair a dh' fhosgail mi mo shùilean,
Cha robh dùil leam ach mi-fhein.

Dh' fhàs a nis an oidhch' ro shalach,
Bhrùchd na tuiltean troimh na gleannaibh,
Fhreagair creag is beinn le farum,
Fuaim na gaillinn air an raon;
Las an iarmailt suas mar fhùirneis,
Le tein'-athair ghathach, lùbach,
'Na dearg stìll mu chinn nan stùcan,
'Leum na spùt o thaobh gu taobh.

Ach, mu dheireadh, bhrist an latha,
'S thionndaidh mi mo cheum gu baile,
Thug mi sùil air cùl an tighe,
Dh' fheuch am faighinn lorg an laoich;
Ach an àite crodhain Shàtain,
Bhi r'am faicinn anns a' chlàbar,
'S ann a fhuair mi each a Ghàidseir,
Toll 'na mhàileid 's fuil mu 'n fhraoch.

PEADAR 'S AM BÀRD.

Thuit mi 'm shuain aig an abhainn
Tha 'gluasad thairis gu séimh,
Eadar sinn 's Nuadh-Valhalla,
A luaidh ar n'athraichean, neamh.

Chunnaic mi 'm shuain, 'an sealladh,
Gu'n d' fhuair mi thairis leam fein,
'S gu 'm fac mi uam am baile,
'S mu 'n cuairt air balla de 'n ghréin.

Rainig mi 'n geata 's bhreab mi,
'S air m' fhacal, eadaruinn fein,—
Chunnaic mi dlùth, air seideig,
Piob-chiùil is feadan na Féinn.

Thog sud mo mhisneach 's fhreagair
Mi ceistean Pheadair gun fhiamh;
"Cia as a thug thu 'm breabadh?"
"Á Diùra chreagach nam fiadh."

"Ciamar a chaith thu 'n latha?"
"An déigh damh cabrach na cròic,
'S greis a' cur taod ri bradan,
'S a' brìodal chaileag gun ghò."

"Dad eile bu mhiann leat aithris?"
"O, rinn mi rannan nach b' fhiù;"
"An robh iad air stéidh a b' airidh?"
"Té dhiù air ablach Fear-ciùil."

"Ri bochd an d' roinn thu t'aran?"
"Cha robh bheag agam dhomh fein;
Ach fhad 's a mhair na bh' agam,
Cha' n fhac mi 'n t-ainnis gun ghréim.'

"An d' labhair thu sìth ri anam
Na dhìth, gun aire, gun treòir?"
"Athair, cha b' urrainn domh labhairt;
Thug mi na bh' agam,—mo dheòir."

"Gabh, suas, cha tuar thu fathast,
Air duais nam flaitheas a's àird';
Tha 'n cridhe truacant' airidh,
'S tha suaip 'a t'anam de'n bhàrd."

MALCOLM MAC FARLANE.

BORN 1853.

PAISLEY'S reputation for having produced a numerous progeny of the "tuneful brethren" is well known, and who has not heard of the pointed and neat sign-post maxim coined for that town by Beaconsfield. The author of a recent work on Gaelic literature has expressed an opinion to the effect that the Gael must now, and in the future, "keep his eye" on the populous towns and cities of the South when on the quest for the best living Gaelic bards. Accepting his dictum as regards the present, although hoping for a better order of things in the times to come, the seekers' eyes are pointed by the maxim in the direction of Paisley. Now, a proverb is sometimes a mere will-o'-the-wisp; yet at other times it may be a true guide. On this occasion we are not landed in a morass, for from Paisley emanated the sweet Gaelic lyric, "Mo Dhachaidh," which

> "Invites the eye to see and heart to feel
> The beauty and the joy within their reach,
> Home and home loves, and the beatitudes
> Of nature free to all."

In these times of greedy lust for gold and self-aggrandisement we have much need to listen to the message of our Gaelic bards, for they, one and all, teach that "worth makes the man." In "Mo Dhachaidh" a Highland cottage is dressed with love's own fancies, and human happiness is summed up much in the manner of Burns when he said—

> "To mak' a happy fireside clime
> To weans and wife,
> That's the true pathos and sublime
> Of human life."

Malcolm Mac Farlane was born at Kilmun Farm, Dalavich, Lochaweside, about the close of the Crimean War.

A few years later his parents removed to the neighbourhood of Paisley, where he grew up and still resides. He is a measurer and land surveyor. Love for the Gaelic language led him to become an author. He has been a member of the Executive of "An Comunn Gaidhealach" from its inception, and is the author of "Phonetics of the Gaelic Language," and of a system of Gaelic phonography. He is also one of the editors of Rob Donn's songs and music, and editor of "Songs of the Highlands," "Scottish Gaelic as a Specific Subject," "An Lon-dubh," and "An Uiseag," the two last mentioned being collections of Gaelic songs for schools. He has written some favourite Gaelic lyrics. As a translator he has been successful in transmitting much of the spirit of the Gaelic original into English verse. During the past twenty years Mr. Mac Farlane has contributed articles to Highland magazines and newspapers.

"Mo Dhachaidh" must be regarded as his best production, and, singularly enough, he had never less trouble with anything of the kind which he undertook. It was written under the following circumstances:— Mr. Archibald Ferguson, Glasgow, sent him the air for which he had words that did not satisfy him, asking him to try and make a song to the tune. How he came to adopt the idea Mr. Mac Farlane himself cannot tell. He started there and then. It all seemed to come to him, and in a little over two hours it was completed, as our readers now find it, except for a word or two, and that it was written in eight-line stanzas and no chorus. Mr. Ferguson got it next day, and returned it insisting on a chorus, which was provided, and it was then printed for the St. Columba Gaelic Choir. It was translated by Mr. Mac Farlane himself later, and inserted in the "National Choir," issued by Messrs.

J. & R. Parlane, Paisley. Later still, it was happily translated by Alexander Stewart, police constable, Polmont. The air is known as "Posadh Piuthar Iain Bhàin," and is found in Mac Donald's collection of Gaelic airs, published a hundred years ago. Mr. Ferguson got his version several years ago, and it tallies very closely with Mac Donald's.

'S i tìr mo ghràidh an tìr a tha mu thuath,
A beanntan àrd 's a gleanntan àillidh uain,
A sruthan cas a' ruith gu bras gu cuan
Le fuaim nan iomadh steall.
'Nam òige dh' fhogluim mi mo ghaol do'n tìr
Nuair bha mi 'm ghiulan siubhal cluain is frìth ;
'S tric shil mo dheòir 's a dh' at gun deòin mo chrìdh
Aig léirsinn lìth nam meall.

D'a còrsa garbh tha bèarnach, creagach, liath,
Thig gaoth thar sàil le gàir o 'n àirde-'n-iar,
A' giùlan blàths is slàinte air a sgiath
'S glan fhiamh do shìol nam beann.
Tha 'm fraoch gu bòidheach còmhdach sléibh is cruaich;
Fìor shamhladh è 'na ghnè do 'n dream mu thuath:
So-lùbach, tlàth; ach làidir, righinn, cruaidh,
'S cho buan ri luibh a th' ann.

An soillse 's gruaim tha tuar air tìr mo spéis,
Gun choimeas, grinn, nach cinn air dùthaich chéin:
Mar shùilean blàth mo ghràidh, fo dhèarrsadh gréin',
Mar ghnùis fir thréin, fo ghreann.
Tog ort, a ghleamhraidh chranndaidh, thar a' chuain;
Teann thusa nall, a shamhraidh, 's ruaig e bhuainn;
Tha miann mo chrìdh' air sgrìob a thoirt gu tuath,
Gu luath, an còir nan gleann.

Cha 'n e Ceann-tìr, no Ile gorm an fheòir,
Druim-Albann àrd, Ceann-tàil, no 'n t-Eilean Leòbhas;
Cha ghleann, cha chrìoch, cha sgìre bheag no mhòr
Mu'm bheil mo cheòl 's mo rann;
Ach Tìr nan treun, gu léir, o dheas gu tuath:
Gu 'm mair ar dìlse dhì-se daingeann, buan;
Gu 'n seas sinn dlùth a chum a cliù chur suas
Is buaidh dhi anns gach àm.

Beul an ana - moich o hì, 'S fheudar falbh le 'cuid seòl.
In the gray dusk of eve, O'er the waves let us go.

SEISD:—

Leis an Lurgainn o hì,
Leis an Lurgainn o hò,
Beul an anamoich o hì,
'S fheudar falbh le 'cuid seòl.

An Cuan Eirinn o hì,
Muir ag éirigh o hò,
Cha bu léir dhuinn o hì,
Nì fo 'n ghréin ach na neòil.

Seachad Ile o hì,
'M beul a h-oidhche o hò,
Las sinn coinnlean o hì,
'S chuir sinn combaist air dòigh.

Seachad Aros o hì,
Bha e gàbhaidh o hò,
'N fhairge làidir o hì,
Suas gu bàrr a' chroinn-sgòid.

Thuirt an sgiobair o hì,
Ri chuid ghillean o hò,
"Glacaibh misneach o hì,
'S deanaibh dìchioll, a sheòid.

"Mar bu nòs dhuibh o hì,
Seasaibh dìleas o hò,
'Bheil e coltach o hì,
Gu 'n tig dosgainn 'nar còir?

*Gaelic words from Sinclair's "Oranaiche." Translation by Mr M. Mac Farlane.

"'Suas a h-aodach o hì,
Ri 'croinn chaola o hò,
'Snàmh cho aotrom o hì,
Ris an fhaoilinn air lòn.

"Muir 'ga bualadh o hì,
Taobh an fhuaraidh o hò,
Bith'dh sinn buadhar o hì,
'S gillean uallach air bòrd."

Chorus:—

With the Loorgeen o hee,
With the Loorgeen o ho,
In the gray dusk of eve,
O'er the waves let us go.

On the ocean, o hee,
Waves in motion, o ho,
Naught but clouds could we see
O'er the dark sea below.

Islay looming, o hee,
In the gloaming, o ho,
Our ship's compass set we,
And our lights we did show.

Aros passing, o hee,
'Twas harassing, o ho,
The strong billows to see
High as masthead to flow.

Skipper bellows, o hee,
To his fellows, o ho,
"Steady! courage take ye
Though a tempest should blow.

"Look a-head, mates, o hee,
Without dread, mates, o ho,
Those that danger would flee,
Let them sneak down below.

"Crowd her sails on, o hee,
And though gales come, o ho,
Light as sea-gull will she
O'er the heaving waves go.

"Billows lashing, o hee,
Waters crashing, o ho,
Without blenching we see:
There be stout hearts on board."

THE MELODY.

AIR—"An nochd gur faoin mo chadal dhomh."

KEY G.—Moderato, with feeling.

O! siod am fonn a chual-a mi An uair a bha mi òg,
Oh! that's the air I heard long since, In childhood's happy day,

Mi 'n cluain ri uchd mo mhàthar 'S mo chridhe 'snàmh 'na ceòl;
When folded to my mother's breast, My soul drank in her lay;

'S 'nuair 'chuala mi a rithis e Aig nighinn ghil nam bò,
Again, when round my father's cot, I frisked a sportive boy,

Gu 'n thàl-aidh i mo chridhe leis 'S mi mireagaich mu'n chrò.
Full oft the milkmaid waked the strain, And thrilled my soul with joy.

O! siod am fonn a chuala mi
An uair a bha mi òg,
Mi 'n cluain ri uchd mo mhàthar
'S mo chridhe 'snàmh 'na ceòl;
'S 'nuair 'chuala mi rithis e
Aig nighinn ghil nam bò,
Gu 'n thàlaidh i mo chridhe leis
'S mi mireagaich mu 'n chrò.

Bu tric o sin 'ga chlàistinn mi,
Mu eadradh àrd-thra nòin,
'S mi beadradh, air an àiridh,
Ri mo Mhàiri àillidh òig;
No feadh nan glacag fàileanta
'S an tàrladh dhuinn, gun ghò,
'Bhi coinneachadh, gu mànranach,
Fo sgàilean Choill-nan-cnò.

*Gaelic words from J. Munro's "Filidh," where they are signed "Eagar," the pen name of Rev. Martin Macintyre—a brother of the late Rev. John Macintyre, LL.D., Kilmonivaig. Translation by Mr M. Mac Farlane.

Ach b' éiginn dòmhs' an àiridh
  Agus Màiri 'chur air chùl,
Is siubhal fad' o'n àite sin
  'S an robh mo ghràdh 'us m' ùigh,
A sheasamh anns na blàraibh
  'N aghaidh nàmhaidean ar dùthch':
'S an làtha dh' fhàg mi 'm Bràighe,
  Rìgh! bu chràiteach m' aigne brùit'!

O! siod am fonn a chuala mi,
  'S a chuaileanaich mu 'm chrìdh',
A 's tric a dhùisg dhomh sealladh
  Air mo leannan 's air mo thìr;
An uair a bhithinn airtnealach
  'N am chairtealan, le sgìos,
Gu 'n taislicheadh e m' anam
  'Nuair a chanainn e leam fhìn!

Ach thog am fonn an tràth-so dhomh
  Fàth cànrain agus bròin;
Oir dhùisg e ìomhaigh Màiri
  'Us mo mhàthar, 's iad fo'n fhòid;
Gach caochladh agus sàrach
  'Thàinig air na Gàidheil chòir,
O 'n àm 's 'n a bhuail an dàn ud mi
  Le gràdh, 'nuair 'bha mi óg!

Oh! that's the air I heard long since,
  In childhood's happy day,
When, folded to my mother's breast,
  My soul drank in her lay;
Again, when round my father's cot,
  I frisked a sportive boy,
Full oft the milkmaid waked the strain,
  And thrilled my soul with joy.

And oft since then I've heard its notes
  With rapture fill the ear
At noonday in the shieling, when
  My Mary lilted near;
Or when, in evening's peaceful calm,
  Our steps together strayed,
With song and artless gaiety,
  Adown the scented glade.

But cruel Fate at length decreed
  That I should wander far
From Mary and my kindred dear,
  To fill the ranks of war—

My country's rightful cause to stand
  Against a foreign foe:
That day I left the glen I loved,
  What words could tell my woe!

Again I've felt its moving tones
  Around my heart entwine,
Awakening thoughts of home and love,
  And joys that once were mine,
When, far away 'mid other scenes,
  I thought of bygone years,
And hummed it o'er with melting heart
  And eyes bedimmed with tears.

But when I hear it now, it wakes
  Sad thoughts within my breast;
It minds me of my mother,
  And my Mary, now at rest;
The evils that befell our land,
  The wrongs my country bore,
Since first I heard that melody
  In the happy days of yore.

HENRY WHYTE.

("FIONN.")

BORN 1852.

THERE is no worker in the Celtic field who is so well known at home or abroad as "Fionn"—the pen-name of Mr. Henry Whyte, Glasgow. A native of Easdale, in the district of Lorn, Argyllshire, "Fionn" removed to Glasgow when quite a youth, where he has been ever since in close fellowship with his countrymen in every movement having for its object the advancement of the interests of Highlanders. "He is patriotic in the best sense of the word," writes Mr. Malcolm Mac Farlane, "having long advocated the cause of the Highland people, and he enjoys their confidence in a marked degree. From long association and frequent contact with all classes of his countrymen, he knows thoroughly the temper of their mind and character; and his command of the Gaelic language, which he uses fluently and idiomatically, has caused his services as a platform speaker or lecturer to be in great demand. In the bestowal of these he is extremely obliging. Indeed, in that connection it may be said his sympathies are truly catholic, as he never shows himself to be influenced in the smallest degree by prejudices begotten of class, creed, or clan."

The pen-name of "Fionn" has been for many years recognised as authoritative on all subjects connected with the language, history, poetry, folk-lore, and music of the Highlands, and the popularity which his various publications have enjoyed is best evidenced by the fact that they have either passed through more than one edition or are entirely out of print. His "Celtic Lyre" is, without doubt, the most popular collection of Gaelic song and music ever published, and his "Martial Music of the Clans" dealt exhaustively with a subject which has not hitherto been adequately treated by any previous writer. As a translator of Gaelic poetry he has few equals, and in his "Celtic Lyre" and "Celtic Garland" he has given to English literature translations from the Gaelic, not only beautiful and faithful to the original, but with the additional merit of being singable to their native Gaelic airs.

In the field of Highland music and song no writer of our time has contributed so extensively to the literature on the subject, or has done more to create the present-day popularity of Highland music than "Fionn." Not only has he written many original and popular songs in the vernacular tongue, but he has also composed the music of one of the most popular Gaelic songs at present sung at Highland gatherings, "Suas leis a' Ghaidhlig" (for the song and biographical sketch of its author see Vol. II.)—"Up with the Gaelic"—and many other pleasing melodies.

He has also done solid work in Highland history, many of the sketches of the clans which appear in Messrs. W. & A. K. Johnston's work, "The Tartans of the Clans and Septs of Scotland," being from his pen. This publication, in two volumes, is admittedly the most exhaustive and sumptuous work ever published on this subject.

Mr. Whyte's many articles on the history, social condition, and folk-lore of the Highlands, which have appeared in numerous newspapers, would, if collected, form material for many interesting volumes.

He was assistant secretary of the Glasgow International Exhibition of 1901, but since the close of that successful undertaking, he has devoted himself entirely to Celtic journalism. In September, 1906, the King was graciously pleased to confer on Mr. Whyte a Civil

List pension of £50 for his contributions to Gaelic literature.

A melancholy interest is attached to "A' mhaighdean aluinn" and "Dealachadh Leannain," two of the lyrics included in the following selection. They were composed many years ago in praise of the Highland lady who became his wife, and who died in January, 1906.

Tha mo ghaol-sa cridheil, ceòlmhor—
Có 'n a cuideachd a bhiodh brònach?

Faodaidh 'n smeòrach a bhi bìth.

Falt a cinn 'n a dhualan òrdail;

* Gaelic words, melody, and translation by "Fionn."

I have parted with my lassie,
Yester eve she went away;
Sad I parted with my lassie,
Heaven's blessing with her stay.

I had scarce exchanged the greeting
Of the maid I loved so well,
For the moments quickly fleeting
Made us breathe a sad "farewell."

With a vision's rapid motion,
Or like lightning in the sky,
Fled the dream of my devotion,
Leaving me to weep and sigh.

Since I knew thee, dearest maiden,
Thou wast faithful, kind, and free;
Now I'm sad and sorrow-laden,
For thy like I ne'er shall see.

Auburn nymph, so blithe and merry,
Would that I could see thee now;
Cheeks that vie with rowan-berry,
White as snow thy gentle brow.

Nought on earth can give me pleasure,
Mirth and music cause me pain;
Never, till I see my treasure,
Shall I be myself again.

O, bu bhinn a caoidhrean brònach—
"Tha mo ghaol air aird a' chuain."

Rinn an ceòl le deòin mo thàladh
Dlùth do rìbhinn donn nam blàth-shul
'S i ag ùrnuigh ris an Ard-Righ
"Dìon mo ghràdh 'th 'air àird a 'chuain."
Bha a cridh' le gaol gu sgàineadh,
'Nuair a ghlac mi fhéin air laimh i,
"Siab do dheòir, do ghaol tha sàbhailt,
Thill mi slàn bhàrr àird a' chuain."

The following to be sung to the second half of the melody:—

'S tric fo sgàil nan geugan bòidheach
'Ghleusar duanag ghaolach, cheòlmhor,
'S bith'dh t-séisd so 'g éiridh 'n còmhnuidh
"Thill mo ghaol bhàrr àird a chuain."

TÀLADH.

AN OLD FAIRY LULLABY.

Translated by "Fionn."

KEY A—Tenderly, beating twice in the measure.

Nam bu leam fhéin thu thàlaidhinn thu,
Nam bu leam fhéin thu thàlaidhinn thu:
O, nam bu leam fhéin thu cheanainn do bhriodal,
Is nam bu leam fhéin thu thàlaidhinn thu.

SEISD:—
Thàlaidhinn thu, 's gu 'n tàlaidhinn thu,
Thàlaidhinn thu, 's gu 'n tàlaidhinn thu,
Dean cadal mo leanabh, 's mo ghaol agad cheana,
A chagair mo chridhe gu 'n tàlaidhinn thu.

Chunnaic mi seachad mu 'n taca so 'n dé,
Duine mór foghainteach, làidir treun,
Le 'bhogha 's le shaighead,
Le 'sgiath is le 'chlaidheamh,
'S mór m' eagal gu 'n tachair do mhàthair ris.
Thàlaidhinn thu, &c.

TRANSLATION.

Wert thou mine ain I'd fondle thee,
Wert thou mine ain I'd fondle thee;
Wert thou mine ain dearie nae ill wad come near ye;
My heart's dearest treasure, I'd fondle thee.

CHORUS:—
Fondle thee, yes, fondle thee,
Fondle thee, yes, fondle thee,
O, sleep noo, my lammie, ne'er fash for your mammie,
My bonnie wee mannie, I'll fondle thee.

Yesterday even' I heard them say,
A braw and brave gallant gaed by this way,
Wi' bow and wi' arrow,
Wi' sword keen and narrow;
I'm feared that your mammie's awa' wi' him.
Fondle thee, &c.

This sweet and simple Tàladh, or song of caressing, is worthy of preservation on account of its inherent beauty, but to me it has a peculiar interest, because I got it from the late Sheriff Nicolson, that gifted son of Skye, who produced one of the most interesting books in the Gaelic language. I refer to his "Collection of Gaelic Proverbs." Writing from Kirkcudbright in October, 1879, Sheriff Nicolson says:—"I have much pleasure in giving you the words of that little Tàladh you inquire for. It is one of the sweetest things I ever heard, and brings moisture to my eyes at this moment crooning it all to myself, partly perhaps, because it reminds me of the kind, genial soul from whom I got it in 1865, the late Rev. John MacDonald, in whose manse of Harris I stayed for several nights spending the time every night till hours in the morning talking of Gaelic things and singing Gaelic songs. He had a good voice; and I can remember the two of us chanting away at that Tàladh together at two in the morning, he pacing up and down the floor and I stretched on a sofa. He was dead within a year of that—from the result of an accident. That is the only Tàladh I know that I haven't seen in print."

The Tàladh is supposed to have been sung by a good fairy, who, having entered a house, found a baby sleeping in a cradle, its mother having evidently deserted it. The translation is somewhat free, but will be of service to musical readers whose Gaelic education has been neglected.—FIONN.
